

Youth free in hotel arson, murder case

United Press International

An 18-year-old Tucson youth, held since last November as an arson suspect in a Los Angeles hotel fire that killed 25 persons, was declared innocent Friday night and ordered released from county jail.

"The young man is innocent," said Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch and said he would move to have arson and murder charges dismissed.

The suspect, Michael Altenburger, was arrested Nov. 15, the day after fire swept through the Stralford Hotel, injuring 52 persons in addition to the 24 killed.

Just last Tuesday, he was bound over for trial in Superior Court after a five-day preliminary hearing before Municipal Court Judge Antonio E. Chavez.

During the hearing, police detective Michael O. Lambert testified that Altenburger admitted setting the fire. A tape recording, however, was played and a voice identified as that of the youth said, "I still do not believe I set those fires."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Kay said it was decided to conduct a further investigation after the preliminary hearing.

Police and district attorney's investigators took Altenburger from jail and had him retrace his steps on the day of the fire. He said he arrived from Tucson the day before and wandered around the city.

Investigation proved he was in Westwood miles from the scene when the fire broke out, Kay said.

Altenburger was picked up in Westwood by two squad car officers who thought he looked suspicious. Investigation proved he had a record in Arizona involving alleged arson and that was the principal reason he was held as a suspect, Kay said.

Three tenants who survived the hotel fire identified Altenburger as having been seen in the building just before the blaze broke out but their testimony was discredited, Kay said.

Nixon seen owing U.S. tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said Friday a preliminary congressional investigation indicates that President Nixon owes additional federal income taxes.

But he added "We don't have any information to indicate that the President was not in good faith" when he filed his returns during the last four years.

Long is chairman of the Senate-House Internal Revenue Taxation Committee, whose professional staff is examining the returns at Nixon's request.

The staff has said it may be ready to report to the committee by the end of February.

The White House had no comment on the report.

"We are going to say exactly how much the President owes," he said.

Asked about reports that Nixon might owe more than $300,000, the senator replied:

"You said that... But I heard you and I can't contradict it."

The question was raised as to whether there might be a taxpayers' revolt if it were revealed that the President had underpaid his taxes substantially.

"When the taxpayers see how these things work out, there won't be any taxpayers' revolt," Long insisted.

"I just urge you to just wait until we can report because we are going to say exactly how much the President owes."

The senator said, "Everything I know would indicate that he (the President) did what his lawyer and his accountant told him to do."

"He claimed deductions that they thought, or, at least, that they advised him, they felt he was entitled to take..." Long said.

"If he had put as much time on his tax return as one of our more conscientious senators does, just working diligently, he wouldn't have had time to be President."

protruding ridges above his eyes.

The mysterious Simbionese Liberation Army, which has claimed responsibility for killing Oakland Schools Superintendent Marcus Foster last November, has claimed in a letter it was holding Miss Hearst "in protective custody" and would kill her if attempts are made to rescue her.

Charles Bates, FBI special agent in charge of the investigation, said the FBI would do nothing to jeopardize the safety of the 19-year-old granddaughter of the late William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst newspapers.

"Our first consideration is the safety of the girl," Bates said.

Berkeley radio station KPFA and the Berkeley Barb, an underground newspaper, which received copies of the first letter from the SLA, said they received no further communications Friday.

Miss Hearst's father, Randolph Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, and her mother, Catherine, a regent of the University of California, waited anxiously at their suburban mansion for further word.

"At least we know that Patty's alive," Hearst said Friday.

"The thing that really bothers me is that they took a 19-year-old girl and

Nation's trucks begin to roll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top administration officials said Friday truck traffic is up 20 per cent and will be back to normal in the next few days, but contingency plans to deliver food and fuel with police and military escorts were still being readied.

Despite the optimistic predictions, spot checks around the country indicated many truckers were still dissatisfied with the informal agreement worked out with the government Thursday, continuing to demand a rollback in diesel fuel prices. But federal energy chief William Simon rebuffed the demand, saying such a move would only make things worse.

Congress meanwhile put off until late this month legislation to give President Nixon rationing and other emergency energy powers.

The report of increased truck movements came from W. J. Usery Jr., the government's chief negotiator with the truckers, who said after a strategy meeting with Nixon "we have more than 20 per cent more trucks on the road than we did yesterday (Thursday) and we fully expect in the next few days to have all the trucks back on the road."

Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar, who also attended the White House meeting,

The truckers' shutdown appeared to be losing steam in Southern California Friday as highway patrolmen reported truck traffic near normal. Produce and meat wholesalers said deliveries were back to old levels after some declines earlier in the week.

said the government is proceeding with contingency plans for keeping up needed deliveries of food and fuel. He said reliance would be placed on use of railroads with possible police or military escort of truck convoys if need be. He added that he saw no need for such a move right now.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, also at the White House session, said the government is investigating the possibility of federal antitrust violations by organizers of or participants in the trucking strike in about 10 locations. He also said investigators were looking into 91 charges of possible civil rights violations involving injured or intimidated truckers and that prosecution was likely in some cases.

Simon said a diesel fuel price rollback "in itself is counterproductive... just the most unproductive thing in the world," because it would discourage oil exploration.

"We should continue as we are, under the law, to control prices at a reasonable level, not the explosive emotional level of world prices but at a reasonable level that will assure us that we're going to get the investment needed to give the ability for self-sufficiency," Simon said.

The agreement between the government and the independent hauliers allows the truckers to charge their customers more, but there is no provision to force diesel fuel prices back down. The agreement was apparently being accepted by some drivers who returned to work, but the pact also unleashed new violence in Pennsylvania and Ohio where truckers were shot at or wounded.

SKYLAB 3 astronaut Edward Gibson grins at members of the recovery team as they open the hatch to the command module shortly after splashdown. The two at left are doctors. The astronauts were pronounced in excellent health.

Astronauts praised Space odyssey at end

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The last men of Skylab, in excellent shape, Friday ended man's longest voyage through space — 34.5 million miles and 84 days — in a flawless Pacific Ocean splashdown.

SkyLab 3 fliers Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue were praised by space officials for proving man can endure in space and paving the way for trips of many months to other planets someday.

"We have shown that there is no man or machine limitation of whatever we want to do in space," declared William C. Schneider, director of the Skylab project that encountered and overcame countless problems since launch last May.

Gibson strolled the deck of the ship and examined the crew's Apollo ferry ship after the preliminary tests. Gibson, clean shaven, appeared pale but fit.

Pogue said an hour and a half of exercise each day aboard Skylab kept them in good condition.

"Without the exercise, we would have been like jellyfish," said Pogue, who sported a heavy heard, as did Carr.

Dr. Royce Hawkins, chief astronaut physician, said in Houston he was "elated" by descriptions of the crew's condition.

THE third flight in the $2.6 billion program was also the most productive. The Apollo ferry ship that the pilots rode home was tightly crammed with thousands of pictures of the sun, earth and comet Kohoutek, miles of recording tape of scientific data and medical specimens.

The astronauts abandoned the big station 270 miles above earth, leaving it to drift ghost-like with a "time capsule" left for a possible visit by other spacemen. The 86-ton ship will stay in orbit 10 or 11 years before reentering and burning up in earth's atmosphere.

The final leg of the journey, which took the pilots on 1,213 orbits of the globe, sped their Apollo through the atmosphere at 17,000 miles an hour to a gentle parachute landing 176 miles southwest of San Diego and within three miles of the recovery carrier USS New Orleans. For the first time in 17 splashdowns, there was no live television coverage.

"IT'S GOOD to be back," mission Commander Carr radioed the recovery ship. "It's nice to be home," echoed scientist Gibson.

The New Orleans steamed alongside the Apollo and used a crane to pluck it from the water with the pilots inside. NASA doctors opened the hatch and climbed inside to quickly check the crew's condition.

Gibson left the Apollo first, smiling and waving to the crowd, and was helped into a swivel, office-type chair on a forklift platform. Pogue joined him outside, laughing with doctors, and then Carr stepped out and with his crewmates saluted the nearby officials aboard.

They immediately began intensive medical tests in a special van aboard the New Orleans. They will remain on the ship until Sunday when they will fly to Houston to be reunited with their wives.

Southland gas shutdown set

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

More than 350 gasoline stations in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area will close indefinitely on Feb. 24 unless the federal government allows station operators to increase their profit margin, the leader of a retail association said Friday.

The planned protest shutdown by members of the Southern California Gasoline Retailers Association—comprising some 10 per cent of Southland stations—is designed to have a snowball effect, Carson Mobil dealer Art Paul told a press conference.

The station operators' "vacation" was selected to force other stations to exhaust their gas supplies at month's end when deliveries are rarest, he said.

PAUL, vice president of the association, said a letter was to be mailed today to Federal Energy Office chief William Simon asking that gasoline dealers be allowed to boost their profits by a cent-and-a-half.

Acknowledging there "wouldn't be any winners" in a widespread Southland shutdown, Paul said the move was considered a necessity by the 50-odd association members who authorized it in a vote taken Thursday night.

"We feel we're slowly going out of business," he said. "We just can't operate" on a lesser profit margin, and rising prices are rapidly shaving that margin away.

"The way it is now," said Paul, "the price of gasoline has risen 12, 13 cents in the last three or four months, and we've gotten one cent of that. It's just not enough."

PAUL maintained that in December, station operators were promised a two-and-a-half cent boost in profits by federal officials, but that only one cent of that increase has been realized.

The operators' "vacation" would work "like a domino-type thing," said Paul. "We can shut (neighboring stations) down within three or four days."

Paul's station is one of four clustered around the intersection of Del Amo and Avalon Boulevards. Pointing to the other three — two of which were sold out of gas—Paul explained the shutdown process.

"If I shut my pumps off right now, these other stations would have to take my volume (customers), and that would drain them dry in a day, a day-and-a-half."

Paul added that members of his association will go to Fresno next week for talks with another retailers' group concerning a similar shutdown in Central California.

New Jersey joins states rationing gas

Associated Press

New Jersey introduced a limited gasoline rationing plan Friday, becoming the seventh state in the country to do so.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne said the plan would start Monday and would be mandatory. The only other state to make such a plan mandatory is Hawaii.

The New Jersey plan, like the six others, will be an Oregon-style plan, geared to a system of alternating fuel sales days based on odd- and even-numbered license plates.

All of the seven states, and a growing number of local communities, have introduced the plans on their own without direct orders from the Federal Energy Office, which said this week that it cannot order rationing on a regional basis and recommended that states with severe shortages adopt plans on their own.

Virginia appeared headed in the same direction. Gov. Mills Godwin announced Friday that he has directed the state secretary to develop an Oregon-style plan to be used on a voluntary basis wherever needed in the state.

Hearsts await word from kidnapers

BERKELEY (UPI) — The FBI Friday distributed composite drawings of three suspects in the Patricia Hearst kidnapping while her family waited for another communication from the terrorist group that claims to hold her captive.

The drawings, of two black men and a white woman, all appearing to be in their 20s, were based on descriptions provided by witnesses who saw Miss Hearst carried screaming from her Berkeley apartment to a waiting car four days ago.

The woman pictured in the drawing had shoulder-length straight hair which appeared light in color. One black man had a mustache and beard, heavy eyebrows and a natural haircut extending below his ears. The other was clean-shaven with a shorter natural cut and

THESE SKETCHES of the suspected kidnapers of heiress Patricia Hearst were drawn from information received from witnesses, including Miss Hearst's boyfriend, Steven Weed. The San Francisco Bureau of the FBI issued the sketches.

East bogs down in heavy snowstorm

Combined News Services

A fast-moving February snowstorm lashed the Eastern seaboard Friday, closing schools, grounding planes and causing fender-denting traffic snarls. A fall of up to 10 inches was forecast in Virginia, and New York City was under a heavy snow warning. In Washington, President Nixon set out by car for Bethesda Naval Hospital in suburban Maryland for a physical checkup but he was forced to turn back to the White House because of snow-clogged traffic. Atlantic City got four inches of snow in as many hours and it continued to come down. It was the resort city's heaviest snowstorm since 10 inches fell in January 1970. Snow warnings also were up for parts of West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Sioux defeat militant means

PINE RIDGE, S.D. — Jubilant backers of Oglala Sioux President Dick Wilson declared a tribal holiday Friday to celebrate his re-election victory over militant Russell Means, who helped lead the 1973 Wounded Knee occupation against him. Means said he would demand a recount of Thursday's balloting on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. Final unofficial count showed 1,709 votes for Wilson and 1,503 for Means. The defeat was a blow to Means and the American Indian Movement, which sought first by force of arms at the historic hamlet of Wounded Knee and then by the election process to take over the government of the huge reservation.

FTC seeks broad powers

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration asked Congress Friday for sweeping new federal regulatory powers over the nation's food, cosmetic and drug industries. The Food and Drug Administration termed the legislation "one of the most significant set of consumer protection proposals in the last third of a century." The administration bill would broaden the FDA's authority to inspect food, drug, medical-device and cosmetic factories, allow the agency to detain suspect products for 20 days, give it subpoena powers and increase criminal fines from the present $1,000 to $10,000 for first offenders and from the present $10,000 to $25,000 for each subsequent offense.

Soviet 'threat' to Iceland

WASHINGTON — Apparently taking advantage of the global fuel crisis, the Soviet Union has made an "implied threat" against tiny Iceland to cut off oil supplies unless it ousts vital U.S. military bases, administration sources said Friday. The present American-NATO force of some 3,000 men is now in Iceland under a U.S.-Icelandic treaty of 1951 which is subject to revision. Except for airplane fuels, Iceland gets virtually all her petroleum from Russia.

Daylight time disliked

LANSING, Mich. — The Michigan House of Representatives voted Friday to take the state off the new winter daylight saving time after this season and return to standard time Oct. 27. The legislation, still subject to state Senate action, passed on a 90-0 vote with no debate. It was the first move by a state to exempt itself from nationwide daylight saving time proposed by President Nixon and imposed by Congress as an energy-conserving measure. Similar proposals were considered in Florida but no legislative action was taken there.

Israel won't yield Golan land to Syria

JERUSALEM—Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Friday that Israel would not return the Golan Heights to Syria as part of a Middle East peace settlement. "Every Jewish settlement in the Golan is an integral part of the state of Israel" and will be integrated into the Israeli defense network, Mrs. Meir told a group of settlers from the region. Israel and Egypt are currently withdrawing their forces on the Suez front, but there has been no such agreement with Syria on the northern front and sporadic warfare has gone on there ever since the official Oct. 22 cease-fire.

Miners reject strike delay

LONDON — Militant coal-mine leaders rejected Prime Minister Edward Heath's appeal to postpone their strike until after the Feb. 28 general election and voted 20-6 to walk out at midnight today. The decision Friday ran against the personal wishes of union President Joe Gormley, who thought the strike should be postponed until after the balloting, and raised the threat of power blackouts and mass unemployment during the election campaign. Heath's Conservatives hope to win votes with the campaign theme: "Who runs Britain, the elected government or militant trade unions?"

Guerrillas go free

KUWAIT — Nine Arab and Japanese guerrillas, who staged attacks against oil installations in Singapore and the Japanese embassy in Kuwait, landed in the Marxist Arab capital of Aden Friday and were whisked away to an unknown destination. Kuwait radio said the four-engine DC8 landed Friday night in Aden, capital of the Marxist-run country, about 1,100 miles south of this Persian Gulf sheikdom. Japanese officials in Tokyo said the Japanese were being treated as guests and the "reception by South Yemen's government is very warm."

New Lin Piao attacks

HONG KONG — Stepping up attacks on Confucius, currently China's No. 1 historical villain, the government said Friday the late Lin Piao tried to seize power and bring the country under Soviet domination before he died in a plot against Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Red Flag magazine said in an article in its latest issue, broadcast Friday by the Hsinhua News Agency, that Lin used both Confucian doctrine and Soviet support in his power play. Lin, elected vice chairman of the party and designated as "successor" to Mao in 1969, died in September 1971 when a plane in which he was fleeing the country crashed in an Outer Mongolian desert.

People in the news

Tired of waiting in line, he buys own gas station

Combined News Services

A wealthy Miami builder has solved in a simple fashion his and his close friends' gasoline problem: he bought a service station.

"Daniel is not really greedy," said a friend of the builder. "He just put his own padlock on one of the station's three pumps, the one with high-test gas."

According to the friend, the builder had been frustrated by hours spent in line trying to fill the tanks of his family's three cars, including two Cadillacs.

Ten days ago, someone offered to sell him for $10,000 a rundown service station. He bought it on the spot. Later, he found a mechanic to open an auto-repair shop there and to sell regular gasoline to the public.

But sole possession of three keys to the high-test pump has enabled him to fill his cars any time, even after the station's closing hours, and to dispense favors to close friends.

"Daniel is a very popular man these days," his friend said. "The key to his pump has become a status symbol and it is more in demand than a key to a bachelor's pad."

Considerations

Pope Paul VI said Friday in Vatican City that concern for leaderless Hungarian Catholics led him to overcome personal considerations and relieve exiled Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty of his post as primate of Hungary.

Vatican spokesman Federico Alessandrini said the pope took full responsibility for declaring Mindszenty's archbishopric of Esztergom vacant three days ago. The statement answered an announcement by Mindszenty's secretary in Vienna that the 81-year-old cardinal always refused to resign the job which 25 years of prison and exile prevented him from performing.

Untraditional

The tradition-bound Senate had to seek electronic aid Friday when its official reporters of debate were unable to get to the Capitol through a surprise snow storm.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, told his colleagues he thinks it is the first time in history the Senate had to do business without its official shorthand takers. He called for a tape recorder.

The reporters arrived after about 10 minutes and took over.

Streamline

The Army announced Friday it would begin combining basic and advanced training at the same bases to allow trainers to better weed out misfits.

The Army's announcement said the new program, called "One Station Training," would "shorten time in training for the new soldier, reduce his number of moves and take advantage of the expertise in the Army's branch schools."

Everyone sorry he died, but no one takes blame

Everybody is awfully sorry about what happened to Harold Radtke.

The Wisconsin Public Service Corp. turned off the gas at Radtke's Peshigo, Wis., home Jan. 28 because he had not paid his gas bill for three months.

The 71-year-old bachelor's frozen body was found Tuesday lying face up on the floor of his home. The body was dressed in five shirts. There were several blankets on his sleeping couch. Radtke had apparently also been trying to get warmth from a vacuum cleaner motor and an electric heating plate.

The temperature outside was 1 degree above zero. Inside it was 20.

Groucho and admirers

Groucho Marx, 83, talks with students and reporters at UCLA rally called by Committee for the Re-release of "Animal Crackers," a 1930 Marx brothers film. Marx responded to news that he would be awarded a special Oscar at Motion Picture Academy Awards April 2 by saying he wished Harpo or Chico or Minnie Marx, matriarch of the family, could have shared it. Other Marx brothers still alive are Zeppo and Gummo.

Security

In a move that may affect the balance of influence on national-security issues within the administration, President Nixon is expected to nominate Paul H. Nitze to a high Pentagon post next week.

Nitze, 66 years old and a lifelong Democrat with wide experience in government, is scheduled for the job of assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs or head of what is known as the "Pentagon's State Department."

Nitze, one of the original framers of the containment doctrine during the Truman administration, is expected to be another skeptic in the administration, along with Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's policy of giving relations with the Soviet Union and China top priority in foreign affairs.

Inventors

Three American scientists who shared a Nobel prize for inventing the transistor will be inducted Sunday as the first living members of the National Inventors Hall of Fame, a project established with the cooperation of the U.S. Patent Office.

They are: Drs. John Bardeen, now of the University of Illinois, Urbana; Walter H. Brattain, now of Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash.; and William Shockley, now of Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif.

Art gift

John D. Rockefeller III will give his $15-million New York collection of Asian art and a gallery to house it to the Asia Society, an organization he founded in 1956.

Rockefeller said in New York that the collection had been assembled by him and his wife since 1951 on their travels in Asia.

Dr. Mudd

The Oklahoma legislature is debating a request to congress to exonerate Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, the physician who set the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Abraham Lincoln, 108 years ago.

"This may appear frivolous, but to the (Mudd) family it's still very serious," said State Rep. Bill Gooden.

Mudd, a Virginia doctor, was convicted of conspiracy in the April 14, 1865 assassination of Lincoln and sentenced to life in prison. Mudd argued he was unaware at the time of the assassination or of Booth's role in it.

President Andrew Johnson pardoned Mudd after four years because of the physician's work among prisoners suffering from yellow fever. The Oklahoma measure says although Mudd was pardoned, "a pardon does not admit innocence but merely indicates forgiveness."

Gruening

Three U.S. senators have nominated former Sen. Ernest Gruening of Alaska for the Nobel Prize, calling the longtime Vietnam war critic "an indefatigable champion of peace."

The Alaska Democrat, who was 87 Wednesday, was nominated by Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D.; Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.; and Frank Church, D-Idaho. Like Gruening, who was defeated for renomination in 1968, they were leaders in the Senate effort to halt U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Candidate

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Friday night he "would like to be a candidate for president in 1976" and will run for the office if he gets support from Illinois voters and his fellow Republicans in the state.

Percy made the most straightforward declaration of his political ambitions to date before about 600 persons at a Lincoln Day dinner sponsored by the United Republican Fund of Illinois, the state's major GOP campaign fund-raising unit.

Estate

Producer Samuel Goldwyn's immediate family will receive most of his estate, according to his will on file in Los Angeles Superior Court.

The will listed the estate's value at "more than $1 million" and named his widow, Frances, as conservator. She is to receive his partnership. Goldwyn's son, Samuel Jr., was given a $1 million trust fund and his daughter, Ruth Goldwyn Capps, a $250,000 trust fund.

Foxx

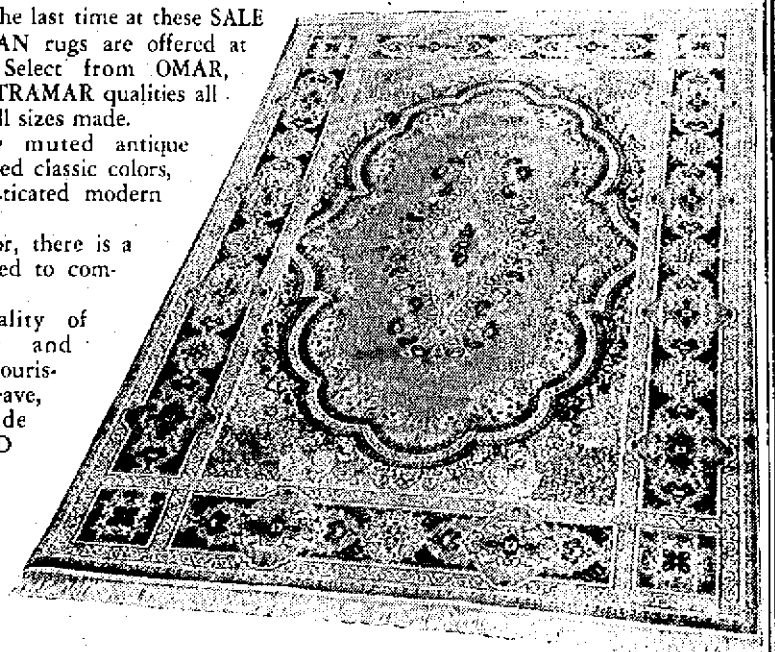

Comedian Redd Foxx, who missed the taping of NBC's "Sanford and Son" this week because of illness, has left the country for a complete rest, his attorney said Friday in Los Angeles.

The lawyer, Jim Tolbert, said Foxx, 51, is suffering from a nervous condition that has caused him to break out in a rash.

Five youths plead guilty in L.B. student shotgun death

Five of six youths charged with participating in the Nov. 28 shotgun slaying of a 20-year-old Long Beach City College student Friday pleaded guilty in Long Beach Superior Court to second-degree murder.

ACTION LINE is your service solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90844, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Questions are selected for their general interest and helpfulness. Please, do not send original documents you wish returned.

Organization

Can ACTION LINE explain the difference between general law cities and those with their own charters? What does the difference mean to the taxpayer? R.L., Garden Grove.

General law cities don't have their own charters and bylaws and so their structure is determined by the state government code, which designates such things as the number of councilmen and the amount of their salaries. The general law or charter format primarily affects only the form of local government; it doesn't really influence the tax structure. A city's tax rate is determined by that community's needs for various services and the fiscal attitude of its officials, said one attorney specializing in municipal government. Smaller cities often choose the general law method because it's easier to set up their government according to the state code than to spend the time and expense drawing up their own charters. Such cities also often contract more of their services from the county. Any change in the format of general law cities must be made by the State Legislature, and for this reason, a charter frequently is viewed as a way of providing more local control over city affairs. However, general law cities can and do lobby for modifications in the state code, and some changes, especially noncontroversial ones, are relatively easy to obtain through the Legislature. Changes in charters must be approved by the voters in citywide elections — a frequent and costly procedure that many smaller cities often can't afford on a regular basis.

UNEMPLOYMENT ISN'T WORKING

Turn time table

I wrote to ACTION LINE in July requesting that left turn lanes be installed on Del Amo Boulevard at Locust and Elm Avenues. At that time, a city official told ACTION LINE the work should begin on the lanes in mid-September, but nothing has been done yet. Since Del Amo is already a divided street, it shouldn't be too difficult to install the lanes. Can ACTION LINE find out what's causing the delay. G.C., Long Beach.

The city traffic engineer's original timetable estimate for that project simply didn't pan out. Left turn lanes are planned for that area and the construction funds are included in the 1973-74 fiscal budget, but the allocation hasn't been approved yet by the city's budget and fiscal officials. Since the proposal has the full backing of the traffic engineer's office the allocation probably will be approved yet by the city's budget and fiscal officials. Since the proposal has the full backing of the traffic engineer's office the allocation probably will be approved soon and construction of the lanes should begin by July 1 at the latest. The fact that Del Amo has a center divider in that area actually has complicated the project, not simplified it as you assumed it would. The center divider will have to be modified to make room for the lanes, which makes the project more expensive.

Bike burglary

I took my boyfriend's bicycle to The Bicycle Mart, 1437 E. 10th St., to be repaired a couple of months ago. When I went to get it, the owner of the shop, Arrol Barlow, told me the bike and a few others had been stolen and he couldn't pay me what the bike was worth — which I believe was about $50 — because he didn't have any insurance. I had given up but then I decided to call ACTION LINE. Can you help? I.M., Long Beach.

No. Barlow denies responsibility for the stolen bike but he did say he would give you a "good deal" on another bike if you would pay the repair charges on the stolen bike. He maintained the missing bike was worth less than $20. He said he has a sign in his shop saying he isn't responsible for losses due to theft.

Case Work

I have a clock which I bought from a jewelry store in Lucerne, Switzerland. In February, 1973, I brought it for repair to Snow's Clock Shoppe, 1639 E. Anaheim St. When I returned to pick it up I was told it had fallen from the shelf and the case had broken. A new case was ordered but it didn't fit. In August I told Snow's that I was returning to Europe and that I wanted to go to Lucerne to replace the clock. Snow's asked if I would carry a letter to the jewelry store inquiring if they could supply a new case. The jewelry store said they could supply one if Snow's would order it. When I returned home Snow's said they would order the case but they never did. After a year I still do not have my clock fixed. Can ACTION LINE please help me? K.M., Long Beach.

ACTION LINE contacted Snow's Clock Shoppe and they said they have ordered a new case directly from the manufacturer. A store spokesman said the jewelry store in Lucerne was charging an "exorbitant" amount for the case and the manufacturer could supply it at a cheaper price. Since Snow's just ordered it, however, they could not say how soon it would be before the new case will arrive.

for probation hearing and sentencing before Judge Ellsworth Beam.

Kevin Charles Cunningham, 19, Gary Leigh Hale, 22, Stanley Hinrichsen, 19, John Van Der Hoek, 21, and Leo John Medina, 19, entered separate pleas of guilty to the slaying of Kevin William Skeith during their 30-minute court appearance.

A sixth participant in the slaying, 16-year-old Clifford Ty Clausen, is awaiting a Feb. 27 court appearance in Los Padres Juvenile Hall.

THE defendants were scheduled to appear before Arguelles for further pretrial motions which included change of venue for Cunningham because of what his attorney termed extensive publicity surrounding Skeith's death.

Instead, Deputy Dist. Atty. Allen Field stunned the crowded courtroom by telling Arguelles that he, the defendants and their attorneys had negotiated a plea-bargain and that the defendants wanted to plead guilty to second-degree murder.

Field explained plea-bargaining by saying, "You give up something and so do we."

Field said the prosecution was giving up the opportunity to try the defendants for first-degree murder and would dismiss an allegation that a firearm was used in the crime.

IN THEIR turn, the defendants were giving up right to a jury trial, Field said.

"If you had been found guilty of first-degree murder," the prosecutor explained, "you could have gone to prison for the rest of your lives. But in pleading guilty to second-degree murder, the sentence is five years to life."

"And if you had been found guilty of using a firearm," he continued, "five years would have been added to your sentences."

The defendants families and wives sat on the edges of their seats as Field said the defendants need not be sent to state prison at all.

"At the time of your sentencing, it is possible the judge could send you instead to the California Youth Authority," Field explained. "And it is also possible the judge could sentence you to state prison for no more than six months, depending on your ages and probation recommendations."

EACH OF the defendants then agreed to conditions of the acknowledged plea bargain to avoid the first-degree murder conviction.

As Field summarized the case, the defendants acknowledged they went to an apartment at 1325 E. 10th St. last Nov. 28 with two shotguns to take money and marijuana from the occupants.

Police subsequently found 41 marijuana plants near a garage in the rear of the apartment and arrested Peter MacIsaac, 23, and Paul Bruning, 20, on several narcotics charges. Brunings and MacIsaac are scheduled to appear Feb. 20 in Beam's court on charges of possessing and cultivating marijuana.

As Field went on, Van Der Hoek acknowledged he and Clausen went into the apartment and forced Skeith, Bruning and MacIsaac to lie on the floor.

Clausen fired the fatal blast from a .410 shotgun when Skeith suddenly moved, Field said.

MEDINA and Hinrichsen acknowledged it was their job to wait outside until the victims were subdued, then seize the contraband. Medina contradicted Field, however, by saying drugs were not involved, that the defendants meant only to recover money he said was stolen.

Hale and Cunningham acknowledged they waited three blocks away in the so-called getaway car, Hale's pickup truck. Cunningham said he waited in the truck because Bruning and MacIsaac knew him.

Clausen surrendered to homicide detectives the following day after a friend called the Independent Press-Telegram for advice on the surrender.

A youth describing himself as Clausen's roommate called the newspaper to ascertain if Skeith had died. He then said Clausen wanted to surrender and had gone to his mother's home.

The boy's mother called attorney Al Ramsey who surrendered the youth at police headquarters. The other defendants were arrested later the same day.

Dates for shopping cart thieves set

A 31-year-old Long Beach man Friday was found guilty in Long Beach Superior Court on charges of grand theft in connection with the taking of shopping carts from a Signal Hill discount store.

Frederick Smith McNeil, of 934 E. 11th St., was charged in the theft last June of 20 metal shopping carts totally valued at $400 from Gemco Stores, Inc., 950 E. 33rd St.

Student given continuance in assault case

A continuance to Feb. 21 has been granted in the preliminary hearing of an assault case involving an alleged attempt to throw a policeman from the Vincent Thomas Bridge.

Judge Walter S. Binns reset the hearing Thursday to give the defendant, Jackie McGee, 20, a San Pedro student, time to get counsel. McGee is at liberty on $5,000 bail pending his new date in court, 9:30 a.m., Feb. 21, in Division 85, Los Angeles Municipal Court, San Pedro.

Police said McGee grappled with traffic officer Burton H. Black on the bridge roadway Jan. 30 after officers had halted a car reported fleeing from a narcotics investigation in San Pedro.

Felony complaints accuse McGee of assault with intent to commit murder and also of the sale or furnishing of marijuana.

TV set stolen

A television, radio and clothing with a total value of $185 were taken from the apartment of John T. Aldredge, 570 E. Pleasant St., by burglars who entered through the front door, Long Beach police reported Friday.

Blizzard at White House

Julie Nixon Eisenhower walks down the White House driveway during a driving snowstorm Friday. President Nixon, who left during the storm by auto for Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital for his physical checkup, was forced to turn back by a combination of the storm and morning rush-hour traffic.

Yeomen says admirals ordered secrets thefts

By SEYMOUR N. HERSH
DENVER — Navy yeoman 1c Charles F. Radford, publicly named as the key figure in the alleged military snooping activities, declared Friday that he was specifically instructed by two Navy admirals to pilfer top-secret documents from the White House.

In an airport interview here, the yeoman named the officers as rear admirals Rembrandt C. Robinson and Robert O. Weland. He began documents, he said, shortly after he was assigned in September, 1970 as a stenographer-clerk to the military liaison unit in the White House.

Radford, 36, named Robinson as the officer who first approached him in the fall of 1970. Robinson then was serving as the military liaison officer attached to the National Security Council — then headed by Henry A. Kissinger. The yeoman was his chief clerk and aide.

"Robinson asked me to do it," Radford said, "he was the one who approached me."

"I did what I was to do and what was expected of me the very best of my ability," the tall, mustached seaman said. "I've always done whatever I was asked to with complete dedication and loyalty to the government."

After Robinson — who was later killed in Southeast Asia — was reassigned in March, 1971, the yeoman said, he continued to pilfer documents at the urging of the admiral's successor, Weland.

N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

The interview took place during a stopover in the yeoman's flight Friday to Washington from his home in Salem, Ore. He was summoned by the Navy Thursday to an unusual Saturday meeting with Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. The committee has been investigating the alleged military spying activities.

Radford said the Navy had told him that he would be reassigned for 30 days on temporary duty to the Washington area.

The yeoman acknowledged that he had pilfered hundreds of documents while serving with the military liaison unit. Most of these, he said, were funneled to the office of Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Radford also confirmed that at least three other high-ranking officers, along with admirals Weland and Robinson, knew about and were involved in the activity, although he added, "it was a very surreptitious operation."

Radford's assertions directly contradicted the thrust of recent statements by Moorer and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, both of whom had minimized the spying incident.

In the airport interview the yeoman said that he had always believed that Moorer was aware of his activities. He said that fact was conveyed to him on a number of occasions by Robinson.

The White House is known to have first learned of the military spying while investigating the leak of sensitive documents in December, 1971 on the India-Pakistan war to Jack Anderson, the columnist.

Tapes release order denied

Ervin panel rebuffed again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Friday dismissed for the second time the Senate Watergate committee's request that the court order President Nixon to give it five presidential tape recordings.

"The public interest does not require that the President should be forced to provide evidence ... to a Senate committee in order to furnish fuel for further hearings," U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said in dismissing the committee's suit.

Gesell said a factor "of critical importance" in his decision was "the need to safeguard pending criminal prosecutions from the possibly prejudicial effect of pre-trial publicity."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the White House was "pleased to note that the Senate petition has been dismissed without prejudice. Judge Gesell's decision is in accordance with the President's view that the judicial process should be allowed to continue without undue publicity."

Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the Watergate committee, issued this statement: "With regard to Judge Gesell's decision, the committee is making no comment but considering what action the committee might wish to take."

However, Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the committee's vice chairman, said: "I guess the committee won the battle but lost the war. As I understand the judge's decision to disclose the contents of the tapes at this time might prejudice some persons' rights to a fair trial," he said. "I am hard put to disagree with his decision."

Gesell's ruling was issued hours after Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's Watergate lawyer, met to discuss Jaworski's demands for continued access to White House files.

Neither side would say whether any progress was made at the meeting.

Last Oct. 17, Judge John J. Sirica dismissed the Watergate committee's suit on the grounds it failed to demonstrate the court had jurisdiction.

The suit was revived when Congress passed a special bill.

Gesell rejected the President's contention that the courts have no power to decide disputes between a president and a committee of Congress. He said the court of appeals ruling directing Nixon to give tapes to Sirica had come down "squarely to the contrary" of Nixon's contention.

He also rejected the President's argument that he can assert a blanket, unreviewable claim of confidentiality for all presidential communications.

But, he said, "It has not been demonstrated to the court's satisfaction that the committee has a pressing need for the subpoenaed tapes or that further public hearings before the committee concerning the content of those tapes will at this time serve the public interest."

Ziegler called by Watergate jury, White House confirms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald L. Ziegler, for months President Nixon's chief spokesman in denying any White House Watergate wrongdoing, recently has been questioned by the grand jury investigating the affair, White House sources said Friday.

Warren said Ziegler's appearance was "voluntary" — apparently indicating he accepted a request to testify and was not subpoenaed.

The grand jury before which Ziegler appeared has been probing the Watergate bugging and its coverup for 20 months and is expected to return major indictments by the end of the month. A spokesman for Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski would not confirm or deny that Ziegler had been a witness.

last April 17, after Nixon announced there were major new developments in the case, Ziegler said all previous White House statements were "inoperative."

In testimony to the Senate Watergate committee last June, former White House Counsel John W. Dean III said Ziegler had known nothing of the cover-up plot. He said Ziegler had not been told the truth, but taught to "hedge, bob and weave" to reporters' questions.

Ziegler, who now also carries the title of assistant to the President, has in past months become one of Nixon's closest advisers.

The sources said Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, appeared before the grand jury for more than an hour Thursday.

Ziegler's deputy, Gerald L. Warren, at first declined to comment on the report. But Warren later confirmed Ziegler had appeared before the original Watergate grand jury and had answered all questions put to him.

For months following the June 17, 1972 Watergate break-in, Ziegler repeatedly assured reporters there was no White House involvement. But

IRS secretly gets Times phone record

By EMANUEL PERLMUTTER

NEW YORK — The Internal Revenue Service has secretly subpoenaed and received from a Washington telephone company records of every toll call that was made from the New York Times bureau in the capital from June, 1973, to last month.

ington who has been covering the Watergate investigation.

"I have no knowledge that my taxes are now being audited by either the Internal Revenue Service or the state of Maryland, where I live," Rosenbaum said Friday.

"One possible explanation of the IRS interest in my phone calls," he said, "is that I have been working on a story about a large contributor to President Nixon's re-election campaign. I have been checking reports that this contributor has been under criminal investigation by the IRS."

On learning of this Friday, a spokesman for the Times said that it would take whatever legal action was necessary to protect members of its staff and their news sources under the free press protections of the First Amendment to the Constitution.

A COPY of all recorded toll calls subpoenaed by the revenue service was obtained by the Washington law firm of Vilmer, Cutler & Pickering and submitted to the Times. The law firm represents the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press.

The telephone records, involving about 2,500 calls made from the Times' Washington Bureau to places in this country and abroad, were turned over to the IRS on Jan. 14 by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

The reporters' group was instrumental in getting the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to disclose last week that the Justice Department secretly subpoenaed in 1971 telephone records of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Knight Newspapers.

Donald C. Alexander, IRS commissioner, said Friday, "I know nothing about this. I will look into it immediately."

The Post-Dispatch had published on June 25, 1971, long excerpts from the Pentagon Papers, a secret study of the Vietnam War. Excerpts of the study had previously been published by the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Boston Globe.

THE subpoena which was served on the telephone company on Jan. 3 in the name of Michael T. DeSanctis, an IRS inspector, requested — "in the matter of tax liability" — the following information: "All toll records from June, 1973, to January, 1974, for telephone number 202-293-3100 listed to the Washington bureau of the New York Times, 1920 L St. N.W., Washington, D.C., and the business address of David Rosenbaum."

David Rosenbaum is a Times reporter in Washington who has been covering the Watergate investigation.

The Post-Dispatch had published on June 25, 1971, long excerpts from the Pentagon Papers, a secret study of the Vietnam War. Excerpts of the study had previously been published by the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Boston Globe.

Moss urges end to Agnew protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., demanded Friday that Secret Service protection of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew be cut off, after the General Accounting Office reaffirmed its finding there is no legal authorization for the protection.

Service protection is not exclusive and that in appropriate cases the President may authorize a Secret Service detail ... we understand the President's authority is based on his inherent executive powers."

In a follow-up report to Moss, made public Friday, the GAO, Congress' investigative agency, said "we consider the position now advanced by the Treasury Department to be untenable ... It is ... beyond question that there is no statutory authorization for protection of former vice presidents."

The GAO earlier had reported $89,222 was expended for Secret Service protection of Agnew from Oct. 10, when he resigned, through Dec. 15. That report, made at Moss' request, said no specific legislative authorization for the outlays could be found.

The Treasury, which has jurisdiction over the Secret Service, said its position was "that the statute authorizing Secret Service protection is not exclusive and that in appropriate cases the President may authorize a Secret Service detail ... we understand the President's authority is based on his inherent executive powers."

Moretti blames fuel shortage on exploration lack

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

California Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, who is also running for governor, took the nation's oil industry to task Friday in an Orange County speech, and inferred that the present fuel shortage, while real, was caused by the "lack of enthusiasm for exploration drilling."

Addressing the Spring Assembly of the Southern California Association of Governments at Le Baron Hotel on Buena Park, Moretti said this country had adequate supplies of natural resources to fill our needs and that the present crisis would be over "in four to six years."

He attributed part of the crisis to the fact the oil companies could reap bigger profits by selling their oil overseas than they could here and that, in the past year or so — they have done exactly that, creating the domestic shortage.

Moretti, as did Los Angeles Supervisor James Hayes, who preceded him in addressing the meeting, called for greater control over the oil industry.

try and emphasized that they must be made to report to the Public Utilities Commission of California on their prices and profits.

"We must make the oil industry responsible to the government," he said. "They must be willing to join a cooperative program."

He concluded by exhorting the members of SCAG to "work with us and we will be able to get some good things done for the people of this state and the nation."

In his speech, Hayes called for a federal agency to police the industry.

The supervisor blamed the present chaotic situation on a lack of cooperation from the oil companies and the confusion created by the federal government.

Despite what he called a complete lack of comprehensive and accurate information about how much fuel we have, Hayes emphasized early in his talk that he "had no doubt that this country is facing a serious energy shortage."

Hayes concluded by calling on SCAG members to work closely with each other and other agencies to solve the problem and "constantly re-evaluate your actions in relation to their potential future impact."

BOB MORETTI
Blames Oil Companies

"Let us not kid ourselves," he said, "the energy crisis is real. It is here now—Arab oil embargo or not!"

Hayes scored the federal government's game of "musical chairs" in assigning people to handle energy crisis. He proposed creation of a Central Data Gathering Agency "which would also be handed the power to verify the very figures that are collected through direct access to the private records of firms and individuals and governments."

Hayes concluded by calling on SCAG members to work closely with each other and other agencies to solve the problem and "constantly re-evaluate your actions in relation to their potential future impact."

Urges Demos to 'level with people'

Tunney rips Nixon, oil companies

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Sen. John F. Tunney, assailing President Nixon and big oil, called on Democrats Friday to bring out their "secret weapon" in this election year and "level with the people."

In a keynote address at the opening session of the endorsing convention of the California Democratic Council, Tunney said the fundamental task facing the nation and Democrats was "restoration of confidence, believability and respect."

"Let us, Democrats level with the people," he urged. "That has always been our secret weapon. But much more is at stake today than partisan victories. What is at stake may well be the survival of democratic government itself."

"It will not do in this campaign year of 1974 to merely fire away at the inviting target of a wounded and embattled President," Tunney said. "It will not be enough merely to wring our hands and curse the corrupt."

"FOR ALL of us," he said, "have contributed to the current crisis of confidence. We have permitted secrecy and too much power to become dangerously concentrated in the hands of too few. The White House is the first obvious example."

He charged the Nixon administration had "forfeited the trust of the nation because fundamentally it doesn't trust the people" and has "waged a relentless war of suppression and surveillance."

"And, if economic high crimes and misdemeanors were impeachable offenses, the President long ago would have been driven from office," the lawmaker said.

Tunney, who last month held hearings in California into alleged blackmarketing of diesel oil and other distillate fuels, also voiced skepticism that the fuel shortage was "real."

"Whether we can prove that the fuel crisis is contrived may be another matter," he said.

"But, my point is that whether it is a phony crisis or not, we have permitted such enormous economic power to accrue to a handful of giant oil companies that no one can question their ability, if they choose, to create a crisis, to manipulate the consumer — to hold back supplies in order to drive up prices and maximize profits," Tunney said.

A resolution demanding impeachment of President Nixon was introduced by Marin County Young Democrats at the convention.

CDC President Nate Holden of Los Angeles said some form of a pro-impeachment resolution would probably be adopted by the volunteer political organization before its weekend convention was over.

"It's a popular position" among CDC members, Holden said.

Meantime, backers of Congressman Jerome Waldie claimed at least 390 delegates to the CDC convention would vote to endorse Waldie for governor.

That figure still leaves

Waldie short of the 60 per cent delegate vote required for endorsement from the grassroots party organization.

Waldie was one of six Democratic candidates for governor seeking to round up support from the 1,000 delegates are nearly as many alternates attending the weekend CDC convention.

Other candidates included Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys; Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr.; San Francisco businessman William Matson Roth; Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco and Los Angeles attorney Herb Hafif.

LBSU president criticizes university's proposed budget

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

The governor's proposed 1974-75 budget for Long Beach State University is a "substantial improvement" over recent budgets, but it still doesn't give the college the fiscal flexibility it needs, President Stephen Horn said Friday.

LBSU was allocated $34,979,664 of the $454.6 million budget proposed for 19-campus California State Universities and Colleges. The budget must still be acted upon by the Legislature.

Although the proposed LBSU budget is slightly less than the $35,393,179 the college received this year, several badly needed projects were funded, college officials said.

Horn said the college received $3,946,000 in capital outlay funds, the second highest allocation in the system.

"This is in recognition of our continued growth, which in turn is due to our types of programs," Horn said.

He said that $3,870,000 was received for the construction of an industrial technology building that had been long delayed.

In addition, $88,000 was allocated for planning the conversion of the present Administration Building when LBSU officials move to a new mid-campus building.

Another $8,000 has been set aside for planning the renovation of some science facilities.

If approved by the Legislature, the budget will allow:

—Adding about 95 more administrative and staff personnel.

—A 5.9 per cent increase in book and periodical purchases for the library.

—Expenditure of $80,990 for faculty promotions. ($106,763 was received for that purpose last year, however.)

Gov. Reagan's budget also recommended:

—Continuation of the Chancellor's Innovation and Improvement Fund, which Horn called "one of the most important developments in recent years." It financed LBSU's Weekend College last year.

—Increase support for the Educational Opportunities Program for minorities. Last year, the number of students admitted to the program was increased, and the increased support in the proposed budget covers the cost of a second and third college year for those students.

—A salary increase of 5.45 per cent for faculty members. (The system's Board of Trustees had recommended a 5.5 per cent hike and additional fringe benefits, however.)

Although Horn said the budget was better than in recent years, it still did not allow easy transfer of university money from one program to another, which he maintains is necessary to respond to the college's "changing human and material needs."

Horn has long been a proponent of giving the state college system and the individual campuses more control over the use of the money that is budgeted to them.

Money should be transferable between individual university programs, between university campuses and between the campuses and the chancellor's office, he said.

"The current budget system is a fiscal handicap that would not be tolerated in general business practice," he said.

"To achieve optimum use of appropriated funds, it is extremely important that we secure legislation to provide additional fiscal flexibility."

He said Senate Bill 188, introduced last year by Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, would have achieved that purpose. The bill fell one vote short of passage last June, however.

Hafif challenges Demo opponents to debate

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Herb Hafif challenged his Democratic opponents Friday to a series of "one-on-one" television debates.

Hafif, former president of the California Trial Lawyers Association, said he has purchased television time in early March and hopes to debate Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. in the first encounter.

"Inasmuch as this would be available to you without any expense," Hafif said he told Brown in a letter, "I'm sure you will be happy to accept this invitation."

A spokesman for Brown said he didn't know whether the secretary of state would accept. He said Brown had appeared on television to discuss the issues with major candidates.

But, he added, "I don't know that Hafif is a major candidate."

Hafif told Brown that one of the matters he wanted to debate was "the issue of policing your own campaign."

Phone rates slash urged

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Telephone Co. should reduce its rates by $114.4 million a year instead of getting a $290 million annual rate increase, the staff of the state Public Utilities Commission said Friday.

The staff also recommended a 10-cent charge for directory assistance requests for telephone numbers in the caller's area. However, it would go into effect only if the PUC grants the company an increase of $167 million or more.

The reduction, recommended in a staff report, was based on a recommendation that Pacific Telephone have a rate of return of 7.9 per cent.

The staff said the current authorized rate of return is 7.85 per cent and it estimated the firm actually had a 7.2 per cent rate of return in 1973.

The PUC has held 68 days of hearings, heard 7,213 pages of testimony by more than 106 witnesses and received 149 exhibits during sessions held between Jan. 5 and Nov. 1 last year.

The $290 million increase sought by the company would hike basic residential service from $4.80 to $8.50 per month and business rates from $8 to $9.25 a month.

Under the staff proposal, basic business rates would be cut $1 per month, residence flat rates by 80 cents an residence message rate service by 25 cents a month.

The staff also recommended reducing local message rate units by one-half cent per unit and reducing the revenue from toll calls made within the state by $92.5 million.

To offset some of this reduction, the staff would convert multi-message unit calls to toll calls which would result in an increase of $30.5 million in revenue, leaving a net reduction of $114.4 million.

The staff also proposed a 10 cent charge for directory assistance calls for numbers listed in the calling location directory.

Proposition listing for June 4 ballot

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Using Ping-Pong balls in an impartial drawing, ballot positions were assigned Friday for propositions ranging from political reform to diverting gas taxes to rapid transit.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., California's chief elections officer, conducted the drawing. The first eight propositions were placed on the June 4 ballot by the Legislature and the ninth by initiative petition.

THE propositions and their numbers are:

Prop. 1 would enact the $250 million State Beach Park, Recreational and Historical Facilities Bond Act.

Prop. 2 would provide of $50 million in bond monies for development of local waste treatment facilities.

Prop. 3 would authorize use of $50 million in bond monies for home loans to veterans.

Prop. 4 would delete a requirement that property destroyed in a natural disaster may only be reassessed after the governor has declared a state of disaster.

Prop. 5 would enable gas tax funds to be used for construction of rapid transit development.

Prop. 6 would require all Legislature proceedings be open to the public except those exempted by statute or concurrent resolution.

Prop. 7 would exempt the California Postsecondary Education Commission's chief administrative officer and five deputies from civil service.

Prop. 8 would allow Sacramento County voters to consolidate their county government with all city governments within Sacramento County.

Prop. 9 is the proposed Political Reform Act, placed on the ballot by initiative petition in a campaign sponsored by Brown and Common Cause. It would limit campaign spending, require detailed reporting of campaign finances, regulate lobbyists, restrict and require disclosure of conflict of interest by public officials and establish a fair political practices commission.

It's a bad movie, says area pastor who heads busy exorcism program

By LES RODNEY

The Bible is a better source of information on evil supernatural forces and exorcism than the much talked about movie, says the pastor of a Wilmington church which regularly performs rites against demonic possession.

"We don't recommend that people attend that movie," says Pastor Herb Ezell of Harbor Christian Center, a large Pentecostal church on Wilmington Boulevard north of Pacific Coast Highway. "It has morbid effects, leads to mass hysteria and emotional problems."

With three of his four full-time assistant ministers listening in, Pastor Ezell was interviewed last week on the newly popular subject. His church, which has doubled in membership to 1,000 in the past year, and is acquiring property for expansion, was known for its exorcism ministry long before the advent of the book and movie which brought the bizarre subject to general attention.

EXPLAINING HIS church's special interest in the subject, Ezell, a tall, slow-speaking, 58-year-old native of El Centro said: "The ministry of exorcism is vitally needed. It was a vital ministry in the time of Jesus. And it is in other nations today."

"One reason for its need here today is the revival of the occult and supernatural—ouija boards, fortune telling, Satan worship, astrology—there are even courses on witchcraft on some campuses. We here minister to many who wind up with mental and emotional problems stemming from all this."

As for biblical authority for an exorcism ministry, he cited among many references Mark 16:17 "And those who believe shall use my authority to cast out demons, and they shall speak new languages..."

Is it just demons, or the devil himself that the Catholic priests contend with in "The Exorcist"? There seems to be some confusion between his satanic majesty, his subordinate demons and playful poltergeists.

PASTOR EZELL
'A Needed Ministry'

"As for the devil, Satan, Lucifer entering someone, we do not feel that EVER occurs," said Ezell. "We believe exorcism involves lesser spirits." And lots of them, he added, quoting Ephesians 6:12, "For we are not fighting against people made of flesh and blood, but against persons without bodies—the evil rulers of the unseen world."

The pastor termed the Catholic rite of exorcism valid, and said it could be properly used today by anyone who is qualified.

EZELL WAS asked his opinion of a Jesuit priest's contention that the exorcism rite is medieval nonsense, and that people acting out of fear of hell and brimstone and devil possession are not what Christianity is about, that it is about God's love returned in free will.

Skipping over the charge of medieval nonsense, with which he obviously does not see eye-to-eye, the pastor commented: "I agree that fear of punishment is not the healthiest avenue to Christian faith. Actually, in our total context here, we play down the problems of demonic possession. I never speak of it in my preaching. Such cases are usually by appointment. We emphasize the appeal of God's love, love never failing."

"However, we do find many troubled persons we have been able to help. One reason for their breakdown is in the relationship with God. In John's first epistle, 4:18 we are told we need have no fear of one who loves us so perfectly. We find that the vast majority of those who need some kind of help in the area of deliverance from the oppression of evil spirits, if they were not dabbling in the occult had a breakdown in their love relationships, whether with their father, or family."

Yes, he agreed, an atheist psychiatrist would make the same statement about love relationship breakdown being behind most disturbed persons. But without God's love, plus the vulnerability of loveless persons to demon attack, he would see the diagnosis as limited, though valid.

QUESTION: If a person leads a good, loving Christian life, is he invulnerable to demonic invasion?

Pastor Ezell formulated his thoughts for a careful reply. "We feel a person who is born again, cannot be possessed or invaded. But anyone can come under attack. Now right here I had better bring out that we believe that evil spirits do not go inside a person's body or mind, but gain their control through possessive thought, suggestion."

Isn't this contrary not only to Catholic exorcism belief, but that of Protestant evangelical writers on the topic like Don Basham and Derek Prince, who speak of exorcised demons exiting through the possessed person's mouth?

"We do not concur in the location of the evil spirits." It is not necessary for them to invade a person internally, he amplified, because their powers of suggestion are enormous.

He held up his index finger and moved it toward the reporter's hand. "If a person was under hypnosis," he said, "and the hypnotist said this is a red hot piece of steel, and laid his finger on the hypnotized one's hand, a blister would form. Now if a hypnotist, just a person, has that power..." He shrugged wordlessly.

WITH HARBOR Christian's reputation, do many unstable persons show up seeking exorcism?

"Oh yes, there are attention seekers. Of course, we don't turn them away. If they don't need exorcism, they still need help. By the way, we have no crying out here. We have authority from Jesus to prevent the type of frenzy, convulsions and weird behavior sometimes reported. We keep everyone under control."

Over-emotionalism on the topic may be spurred by the movie, he added, with the paradoxical result that it may keep people from seeking such help.

"The movie is going to frighten some people from seeking healing," he predicted. "This picture is so morbid and gory, they may decide not to go near any such ministry."

Harbor Christian, he noted, has had some of its people outside the theater, "offering their services to those coming out, to calm them down, and share the healing influence of prayer through Jesus."

Who, in the pastor's view, is qualified to perform exorcism?

"Mark said any believer in Christ. Any true believer can minister the liberation—we prefer that word to exorcism or deliverance—from demonic oppression. There is an advantage in being experienced and knowledgeable. Many mistakes are made in this, which can lead to deeper emotional disturbances."

HOW DOES the church actually determine when persons seeking exorcism—deliverance—liberation are really in need of this special ministry, that demons are involved?

He nodded at the question and answered briskly. "We screen. We ask, is this imagination, need for attention, neurosis, mental illness, perhaps some nutritional deficiency, an inner conflict between the desire to live up to being a Christian, and the desires of the body for gratification? Many who think they need liberation just need healing."

Then this healing would be without any rituals aimed at demon possession? The pastor nodded.

The opposite danger of imagining non-existent demon attack, he emphasized, is "to wash your hands of the whole subject, as many pastors unfortunately do. It's about the same as ignoring the signs of cancer."

Harbor Christian's statistics make amply clear that this church thinks the main danger is not in exaggerating demonic presence, but in ignoring it.

Whereas the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles has never in its history used the rites of exorcism, the Wilmington church staff handles a case load of about two a day, 8 or 10 a week, Ezell reports.

What is a typical case like?

"Well," said Ezell, "just this week a lady called about her neighbor, the mother of six, telling us of such bizarre behavior that neighbors were discussing calling the authorities to take the kids. The husband is away in the Army. The woman was brought in, she was apprehensive. One of our ministers counseled, prayed with her and instructed her."

Was she given the rites of exorcism?

"She was given a ministry of exorcism, not the full blown Catholic rite. She then became so calm, in possession of her faculties, that she went home OK and the neighbors didn't find any action necessary."

HOW COULD one know that the woman was not just plain mentally disturbed, and reacted favorably to old-fashioned empathetic counseling, not the exorcism rites?

Pastor Ezell turned to Michael Landsman, formerly of the Jewish faith, who had worked on this case. Other staff members are Pedro Chavez, in charge of drug counseling and Spanish ministry, Dennis Burke, a young youth director, and Harold Brinkley (not present this day), a black minister.

"The major thing," said Landsman, "is that this woman's mother had been into witchcraft. The sins of the parents shall be visited, says the Bible. She was really afraid when she came in. I led her in confessing to the Lord, in asking for forgiveness, in being forgiving herself, and I commanded the demons to depart in the name of Jesus."

Continuing on the same question, Pastor Ezell elaborated: "Let me ex-

Children's ministry

Rev. and Mrs. Willard Grant will bring their program for children to North Long Beach Brethren Church, 6085 Orange Ave. Sunday through Friday, with meetings nightly 7 to 8:15 p.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday. Marionettes, chalk talks and singing are part of the program, which traces the events that turned the pagan Vikings into Christians. The Grants travel 45,000 miles through the land each year, with a trailer containing 10,000 pounds of equipment, costumes, props and lighting. Parents are invited to bring their children nightly.

Breakfast Fellowship

Diversity of the speakers giving the capsule message at the growingly popular Tuesday Community Breakfast Fellowship for Men is shown by the upcoming schedule.

Starting with Tuesday, speakers will be former Judge Martin deVries, a world traveler and one-time missionary; Chaplain John Piirto, of the Naval Station, Rev. Galal Gough of First Methodist, Rev. Wayne Tueurle of the local Rescue Mission, Maj. Tom Hemingway, commanding officer of the Marine Barracks, Aaron Herrington, lay leader at 1st Congregational, voted the new president of the local Council of Churches, first black in that position.

Programs begin at 7 with breakfast and end promptly at 7:50, including a songfest and prayer with the fellowship. It's $1.25, no reservations needed, at Covenant Presbyterian, Third and Atlantic, advises 1974 chairman Sam Rue.

Gas crisis helps, says CG pastor

How much will the gasoline shortage affect the world of religion? Rev. Dr. Robert Schuller, founder-pastor of a church dependent upon the automobile traffic for its success, the drive-in Garden Grove Community Church in Garden Grove, predicts that church attendance will actually increase because of the shortage.

Newsweek quotes Schuller: "The fuel shortage could be the greatest thing for Christianity since World War II... We have had a 10 per cent increase in recent weeks in our church attendance." CBS Evening News, on Dec. 14, showed film highlights of the jammed 1400 parking spaces at the Garden Grove church.

L.B., Lakewood SYNOD TRIES synagogues agree to merge

At a recent congregational meeting of Temple Sinai in Long Beach and Temple Beth Zion in Lakewood, it was voted overwhelmingly to merge the temples into one congregation dedicated to the philosophy and practices of Conservative Judaism, affiliated with the United Synagogue of America.

The historic step by the two pioneer Jewish congregations in the area was formally announced in a letter to the combined memberships sent by the two presidents, Harold Silverman of Sinai and George S. Abrahams of Beth Zion.

The new congregation, they said, will be housed in the sanctuary and school buildings of Beth Zion, at Palo Verde Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard. Beth Zion Rabbi Bert A. Klein will serve as rabbi of the combined congregation and Dr. Sidney S. Guthman of Sinai has been named rabbi emeritus.

A unified board of directors, with equal representation from both congregations, will select a new name which will consider the history and backgrounds of the two temples.

Classes of the religious schools will also be combined. Memorial plaques and other significant items now residing at Temple Sinai will be transferred and installed.

The new unified congregation will have a membership of close to 400 families. In their joint letter, the two presidents concluded:

"The synagogue is the foundation and cornerstone of Jewish life. A strong and active synagogue will help assure the perpetuation of Jewish religion, heritage, culture and history, and make its blessed impact felt in American life as well. With God's help, let us then go from strength to strength, and reaffirm the biblical words: 'How good and how pleasant it is when brethren dwell together in unity.'"

Song and word

"The Second Chapter of Acts," a local family musical trio which has performed with Pat Boone, Barry McGuire and Jimmy Owens, will present a concert Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in Christ Lutheran Church, 6500 Stearns St. They are Annie, Nellie and Matthew Ward.

CONCILIATION

A special conciliation committee has been set up by the rift-torn Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod in an attempt to resolve the crisis brought on by the suspension of the president of Concordia Seminary for teaching "false doctrine."

Rev. Dr. Arnold Kuntz, president of the Southern California district, was named by Synod President Jacob Preus to head up the 16-member group, which will have only advisory powers.

In an interview this week, Dr. Kuntz said he considered himself not committed to either the so-called conservative or moderate side in the dispute, but rather representative of "a substantial number that wants cessation of this trench warfare so we can get on with God's work."

CONCORDIA, THE nation's largest seminary, has ground to a halt with the overwhelming majority of faculty members and students backing the deposed Tietjen. Bitter charges have been exchanged between faculty and denomination leadership.

Asked whether too many bridges may have been already burned for the achievement of results by an advisory committee, Kuntz replied:

"Yes, some have already said this is too little and too late. There is no guarantee that if we build bridges people will walk over them. But I must be optimistic. At least this is a step, provided by the president, in the direction we must move. What is intended here is God pleasing and Christ centered, and I feel the Lord will bless our work."

Asked whether he himself accepted the validity of a historical-critical scholarship approach to the Bible in which influences of the time are considered in analyzing Scriptures, or if he considered Scriptures literally correct, he said:

"I believe Scriptures are correct, but I am not shaken by pointed questions. I don't believe the historical-critical methods have born good fruits."

HIS ESTIMATE of opinions on the Preus-Concordia controversy among Southland Synod members: "There are some who are very very adamant on either side. But their numbers are not equal to those who feel there is a better way than the way either side is going."

"The majority of the people in our congregations would hesitate to speak with finality on the issues, including the pastors. Lay people are generally more conservative than the clergy. We have a very healthy Synod at the parish level."

Asked if he hoped that the upshot of a successful conciliation effort would find Tietjen back in the Synod fold, he said he did, but added that this wish in no way reflected any opinion on the merits of the Preus' charges against Tietjen.

Exorcism interview with local pastor

PEARL HENDRICKS

plain. We are well advised on the existence of psychosomatic problems. We find many cases where we are dealing with this. But this does not discount the validity of demon attack.

"We have an effective, valid ministry to relieve people of psychosomatic problems through exercising—with an 'e' in this case—the authority of followers of Christ. Here is Luke 4:18—'The spirit of the Lord is upon me, to set at liberty those that are bruised.' This is central to our ministry here. So many people have been bruised by traumas—someone who once witnessed his mother in an immoral act, this is devastating. Women who as children were molested by their father, we had one recently, she had to be brought to forgiving her father, back to love..."

IT SEEMED to the reporter that we were talking about two different things, ordinary traumatic experiences and demon possession, but Ezell links them, this way:

"People who have suffered such traumas, almost always related to failure in love relationships, are easy targets for demonic attack, as are those who dabble in the occult."

"Demons move in on easy targets."

In Harbor Christian's exorcisms, he said, the ministers do not indulge in conversation with the demons, as the priest did in the movie. Nor do they demand that the demons name themselves (fear, lust, lies, blasphemy and unprintable categories).

"This is not necessary. We can rather accurately identify the type of evil spirits disturbing a person. We just calmly command them to depart."

Do you ever fail, he was asked.

"We never fail if we take the time to instruct the person in what the problem is that leads to this type of oppression," was the reply. He ran through the list. "If we deal with these, and with forgiveness, we always achieve results."

With one exception, he amended. "Now a person who is mentally ill, because of brain damage, nutritional factors, etc., with them we do not always get results."

Are such people referred to traditional medical help?

"Yes, if we felt we couldn't help. We are in no way in opposition to dedicated, competent people in allied healing—medical doctors, psychiatrists, etc."

ASKED WHETHER in actual exorcisms the results are always dramatic and instantaneous, and whether there is ever any backsliding, the pastor replied that sometimes the results are gradual, and there is a continuing checkup by the ministers for possible relapses.

The church is 40 years old, and the present membership, roughly reflecting its area, is 60 per cent white, 30 per cent Spanish, and 10 per cent Oriental and blacks. Pastor Ezell feels that churches in general do not play their proper role as leaders against prejudice, and "in keeping people from fleeing from those they do not know."

While affiliated with the Assemblies of God, the major Pentecostal denomination, Harbor Christian Center prefers to maintain an independent posture as "an interfaith Christian charismatic center."

The pastor lives in the area with his wife Edna. They have two grown sons and five grandchildren, "all active church members." The church utilizes an extensive tape ministry. In fact, our interview was fully taped for possible use in study groups, and a cassette handed to me as I departed.

While saying goodbye, the pastor smilingly said: "You can judge us for yourself now. Being involved in a ministry of exorcism has subjected us to misunderstanding. Some say we hand out paper bags for people to spit devils into. They call this the church that's full of demons. The ones who say these things are people who don't believe in the truth of demonic oppression, who think it belongs to the Middle Ages."

"Our refutation is in our ministry, we are in complete control of what goes on, have total authority over all forms of evil. This is a place where the Holy Spirit of God and God's love pervade the atmosphere."

As a final biblical thought, Pastor Ezell mentioned James 4:7 on submitting oneself to God. "We teach that if you submit to God in purity and renounce the occult, it's a simple matter to resist the devil. He will flee from you in terror."

ANOTHER VIEW: ritual 'utter nonsense... Jesus only exorcist'

(The following letter from Rev. C. Virgil Zirbel, pastor of United Presbyterian Church of Los Alamitos, is a condensation of a sermon he preached on exorcism.)

RELIGION EDITOR:

I am deeply disturbed by the fact that so many people in our day are becoming involved in the occult. It is difficult to explain this strange fascination with astrology, witchcraft, black magic, spiritualism and the like. And now it seems many persons are giving credence to the idea of devil possession. One would think we had outgrown such notions in our enlightened scientific age.

But someone writes a book titled, "The Exorcist," and then they make a movie from it, and strange things begin to happen. Bob Hope makes jokes about it in his TV special and there is something about it in the news practically every day. It is beyond me how it could be given the award as

What are we to think? Is it possible for a person to be "possessed" by the devil? Can the complex problem of good and evil be explained on the basis of devil possession? And is it plausible, or even possible, that this devil can be exorcised from a person by use of an ancient ritual? I think not.

Yes, I have read the book, but I have no desire to see the movie. From what I have read and heard about this great money-maker, it should have been rated "X" rather than "R." Serious psychological harm may come to children who see it, even if they attend with their parents. It is a sad fact that many parents have very poor judgment in matters of sex and violence.

Beyond this objection based on possible psychological harm is the theological objection to the film. From a Christian viewpoint, it is utter nonsense to believe the devil can be frightened off by ancient incantations or by ritual—even if it is a church ritual. Only God can deal with the devil, and the Bible says He has done so through His Son, Jesus Christ. He was the real Exorcist. In Mark 1:34 we read, "He healed many who were sick with various diseases, and cast out many demons."

Learn to forget

I hear that there is a church that holds a special service once each year devoted to "thought burning." Here is what they do:

Several urns are placed before the altar and fires are lighted in them. Then the members of the congregation, in long queues, move forward each person carrying a folded piece of paper on which he has written thoughts he desires to be rid of—resentment, fear, failure, unhappy memories, regrets. He drops that piece of paper into one of the urns and watches as it turns to ashes.

So strongly does this ritual appeal to people that on these occasions the regular congregation of the church is swelled by many others from all over the area. The idea is to "forget the past and confidently face the future." And it isn't surprising that the church reports many evidences of psychological benefit.

OF COURSE, a person has to know what he should remember and what he should forget. Certainly we need to remember the wise lessons life has taught us. We also need to retain memories of experiences and great joys that have heartened and inspired us. But it is equally important to stop the post-mortems on life's hard knocks, to skip the hurts and resentments, and to forget the bitterness of disappointment.

Of course, it isn't easy

'Jesus Rock' at Wilson

"The Way," a Maranatha rock group from Calvary Chapel of Costa Mesa, just back from a Canadian tour, will appear in concert Friday, 7 p.m. in the Wilson High auditorium, Kimene Avenue and Seventh Street, sponsored by a group of Wilson students. Admission is free.

They have performed twice before 28,000 at Knott's Berry Farm and drew an overflow crowd at Wilson four years ago. A local group, "In His Name," with many Wilson students, will also be on the program.

New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Every other Tuesday at 6:30 a.m., before concentrating on matters of war and peace, a dozen admirals and generals assemble in the Secretary of the Army's private dining room at the Pentagon for coffee, doughnuts and 90 minutes of Bible study.

At the White House about 20 staff members gathered recently at a prayer breakfast to hear Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns speak on the nature of prayer. On Monday mornings five men, including a former high-ranking Nixon assistant meet in a home to foster each other's spiritual growth.

Such sessions are part of a little-known aspect of life around the capitol — a loosely organized network of prayer breakfasts, Bible study seminars and religious cell groups that meet on a weekly basis and draw officials from the highest levels of government.

No one knows how many such groups there are, but they number in the dozens and have hundreds of regular participants. The sessions are normally closed to outsiders. The level is said to range from sophisticated theological discourses to simplistic celebrations of God and country.

The thrust is Christian, but Jews and others are welcome. The requirements are sincerity and a willingness to respect confidentiality and refrain from exploiting the meetings for political gain.

"Thursday is the best day of the week," said Sen. Jennings Randolph D-W. Va., who attends the Senate prayer breakfast. "At the end, when we join our hands in prayer, you can feel the grips tightening. You sense that we are going out strengthened."

Abraham Vereide was a Norwegian immigrant and former circuit-riding evangelist who founded the International Christian Leadership, to bring leaders of government and industry together for prayer.

In 1942 he persuaded legislators to organize House and Senate prayer breakfasts, and in 1953 President Eisenhower established the annual National Prayer Breakfast.

Fellowship House, the late Vereide's former home, is the site of a Monday morning group that includes Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, and Charles W. Colson, a former counselor to President Nixon.

The White House sessions, which were begun in 1971 and usually have about 20 persons, are held in a private dining room from 8 to 9 a.m. on alternate Thursdays. The format is breakfast, a prayer, remarks by a speaker, discussion and a closing prayer.

John Nidecker, presidential assistant who helps organize the meetings, said the emphasis on lay leadership continues. "Otherwise it becomes a Sunday service on Thursday," he remarked.

Senate and House prayer breakfast groups meet at the Capitol on Wednesday and Thursday respectively. In the Pentagon, at least a dozen groups meet for breakfast, luncheon or in the chapel before work.

There are governor's breakfasts in 40 states and mayors prayer breakfasts in more than 1,000 cities.

Participants name several reasons for attending the groups, including getting to know their colleagues. "You go beyond their titles or political affiliations and begin to understand them as people," said Roland Elliott, a White House staff member.

Many of the talks are accounts of how members have faced difficulties such as alcoholism or marital rifts. "You can't help but get encouraged from this kind of testimony," said Rep. John T. Myers, R-Ind., the leader of the house group.

Numerous participants said that the prayer sessions made them more effective in their work and relations with other people. "When I neglect to pray, my work suffers," said Burns, who attends the White House sessions. "The man who prays is a better man."

Former child evangelist opens church

Rev. Isabel Baker, a musical evangelist who has been preaching since she was 13, will launch a regular Sunday ministry this Sunday, 2 p.m. at the Lynwood Chapel, 11733 Long Beach Blvd.

Rev. Baker, 25, was ordained at 21, and terms the new ministry non-sectarian and Bible based. She terms her long years on the road as an evangelist as "on the job experience." One Ohio newspaper likened her pulpit style to Billy Graham's.

Her parents, Rev. and Mrs. George Baker, are both ordained, and will assist at the Lynwood chapel. The 2 p.m. service time, she explains, was set to avoid conflict with several area churches which are cooperating with her.

Nat'l Council to meet here

The Governing Board of the National Council of Churches will meet in Los Angeles Feb. 25 through 28 to hear reports, initiate programs and set broad policies for 1974.

Representatives from the council's 31 member Protestant and Orthodox churches will meet in the Hilton Hotel. Welcoming the board to the city will be Mayor Thomas Bradley, who will present a short message on social issues, and Cardinal Timothy Manning, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles, who will speak on issues of concern to religious leaders.

July of 1975

Next: a joint space mission

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A sign at a motel near the Johnson Space Center advertised "the last splashdown" party Friday, and to people who have followed the early white-hot pace of the space program the words seemed appropriate.

But the end of the Skylab program doesn't close out the American man-in-space activities.

Three more Americans will be sent into space in July 1975 in the first international manned space flight — the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project (ASTP).

In a joint Soviet-American mission, spacemen of the two nations will test a new common docking device which experts say is far superior to any developed before.

The mission plan calls for two Russian cosmonauts to be launched from the Soviet Union aboard a Soyuz space ship. The next day, three American astronauts will be launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., aboard an Apollo command and service module.

Launched with the Americans will be a docking module — a cylinder-shaped compartment that will attach to the pointed end of the cone-shaped Apollo craft.

The Americans will rendezvous with the orbiting Soviets and link up with the Soyuz craft.

During about two days of joint operations, the men will exchange visits, using the docking module to move from one spacecraft to the other.

Afterward, the Soyuz craft will return to earth. The Apollo craft will remain in orbit for about a week more while the astronauts perform additional experiments, including, perhaps, a revisit to the still-orbiting, but unpowered, Skylab space station.

American crewmen for the ASTP mission are Thomas P. Stafford, a three-time space veteran; Donald K. Slayton, former chief of the astronauts who will be making his first space voyage, and Vance D. Brand, another space rookie.

After the ASTP mission, there will be no more Americans in space until perhaps 1978 or 1979.

Officials hope by then to have the space shuttle, an airplane-like reusable space ship, ready for test flights.

TRUCKS BEGIN ROLLING

Feb. 19, after a Lincoln's birthday recess, on the re-vamped energy emergency bill. The House would have to consider the matter after that.

The bill would force the price of all domestic oil back to $5.15 a barrel but would mostly affect wells that began producing oil last year or later since most wells existing before then are already under the $5.25 ceiling. It would give Nixon authority to boost prices as high as $7.09 a barrel.

It would also give Nixon power to impose gasoline rationing and a variety of other energy-saving measures.

The renewed truck traffic appeared likely to ease the food and industrial supply situation in some areas, although it was too early for an accurate reading on its impact.

In related developments:

—Belaid Abdessalam, the oil minister of Algeria, said Friday the Arab oil embargo will not be lifted until Israel evacuates all territory occupied during the 1967 Mideast war.

—Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz told Congress he is convinced "the current levels of international oil prices are neither sustainable nor tolerable over a longer period." He said the U.S. is seeking "not confrontation but cooperation" in seeking a worldwide solution to the oil-energy problems.

—In Glassport, Pa., the Pittston division of Textron Inc., told its workers they would be given free gasoline to get them to and from work and for other emergencies as long as the company's supplies hold out.

—Simon joined actor Kirk Douglas before a movie camera Friday to make a four-minute film on energy conservation that will be shown in theaters around the country.

—Rep. H. John Hein, R-Pa., said he would seek hearings by the House Commerce Committee for a complete look at the problems of the nation's independent truckers.

—A group of seven of the nation's largest fuel tank truck firms posted a $5,000 reward in Washington for "the first person who provides information leading to the arrest and conviction" of any person damaging one of its trucks or drivers.

Oil drilling near Elk Hills OK'd

FRESNO — A federal judge refused Friday to stop Standard Oil of California from pumping at wells adjacent to Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve.

A Justice Department attorney argued drilling should be halted to prevent irreparable damage by draining oil from under the reserve.

But a Standard Oil attorney contended the Navy itself is asking Congress to open Elk Hills to oil production and should not object to the 17,000 barrels Standard takes out, which also helps ease fuel shortages.

U.S. District Court Judge M.D. Crocker agreed with that point in denying a temporary restraining order. He set a preliminary injunction. The Navy will ask then that drilling be halted until the case comes to trial.

"I'm inclined to rule that in the public interest, because of the energy crisis, we need that oil temporarily," Crocker said. "I don't see where there'll be irreparable damage between now and Wednesday."

Rockwell says no to Lockheed

PITTSBURGH — Rockwell International has decided against merging with financially ailing Lockheed Aircraft, Rockwell President Robert Anderson has told the annual stockholders meeting.

Shultz rips suggestion to end Arab aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An angry Treasury Secretary George Shultz Friday denounced suggestions that the United States retaliate against the Arab oil embargo by controlling exports and cutting foreign aid.

Those actions, which Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., said had been suggested by several of his congressional friends, would be contrary to the U.S. position of "not confrontation but cooperation," Shultz told the joint House-Senate Economic Committee.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said the Arab oil producing countries were getting so rich they might try to buy Sears, Roebuck and Co. and were making bilateral deals with consuming countries such as France. Did the administration have any contingency plans "if this thing really gets nasty and threatens to bring the world down?" Javits asked.

Shultz replied: "I think it's important that we not only talk cooperatively, but we act cooperatively and maintain our sense of balance."

He said the consuming nations "may be making very bad deals" which will haunt them when the price of oil goes down. Shultz said the price would come down.

Conable, said the energy crisis was giving domestic politicians an excuse to call for cuts in foreign aid on grounds the Arabs were raking in money with inflated oil prices and the U.S. should let them assume responsibility for helping underdeveloped countries.

"Let's not cut and run. Let's not abandon our principles. Let's not abandon the world. Let's not abandon what we are trying to do," Shultz said. "Let's not just throw in the towel and say we don't give a damn about anybody else."

He said it wouldn't be good for the U.S. economy and "I would say it would not be good for the soul." If Americans abandon foreign aid, he said, developing nations would be in danger of famine and the U.S. would lose its ability to work constructively with other countries.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said export controls could have been placed on wheat if the government had taken steps in advance to learn the effect of the Russian wheat deal on the U.S. economy.

Shultz said export controls on agricultural products don't work because if controls are placed on one commodity, the gap would be filled with other commodities.

Proxmire accused the administration of being ineffective in dealing with the nation's economic problems. He said there was a "lack of forceful leadership in Washington."

Shultz bristled and pounded the witness table. "Why do you keep saying and saying things that are not true," he said. "In a stampede for action, you find yourself doing the wrong thing."

Shultz, rumored to be leaving the administration he has served since 1969, said, "I resent coming up here year after year and being subjected to that kind of talk. That's just a gross misrepresentation and I'm frankly tired of it."

Proxmire said, "So am I!" and changed the subject. But he later apologized to Shultz for his "harsh questions."

held her as a hostage for something they think I may or may not have done."

In the letter, Hearst was referred to as "corporate enemy of the people."

Of the SLA, Hearst said: "I think they probably see themselves as a political group, fighting injustice and some of the economic and social problems existing today."

Bates said the FBI would follow the family's wishes in pursuing its investigation.

"If there's a demand for ransom, we can cover and grab (the suspects), or we can cover and follow them," he said. "If the family says do not cover at all, we absolutely will not cover."

The first SLA letter, dated Monday, the day Miss Hearst was kidnaped, made no mention of ransom demands and said other communications would follow.

Bates said it was logical to speculate that the SLA might try to trade Miss Hearst for two SLA members, both white men, being held on murder charges in the Foster killing. The two suspects, Joseph Remiro, 27, and Richard Little, 26, are being held at San Quentin prison.

A spokesman for the California Attorney General's Office refused to speculate on whether such an exchange could be made.

University of California Prof. Rollin Perkins, 80, considered one of the nation's leading criminal law experts, said the law gives no official authority to release criminal suspects in a ransom deal.

"There is nothing in the law that addresses itself to such a situation. It's outside the law."

4 nabbed; weapons, cash seized in police raid

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

Police confiscated several money-filled cash register drawers and eight firearms, including a semiautomatic rifle, after surrounding a central Long Beach apartment to arrest four persons in connection with a robbery, officers reported.

The weapons, all loaded, were found in the apartment which three of those arrested listed as their address, according to Long Beach Officer Charles Mann.

MANN identified the suspects as: Quintlin Payne, 18, of San Diego; and Leonard Charles Daily, 25; Theotric L. Givens, 22; and Vanessa Givens, also 22, all of the apartment at 1208 Daisy Ave.

Payne, Daily and

Givens were booked on charges of kidnaping and robbery, said Mann, and Givens also was booked on a charge of possessing narcotics. The woman was booked on a charge of possessing narcotics and for investigation of robbery, the officer added.

He said police were sent to the apartment after Levi Spencer, 23, of 1731 Chestnut Ave., reported that three men had forced him into their car and driven him to his home where they took $90 from him.

SPENCER knew Givens slightly by the nickname of Bojack, officers added.

Officers arrived at the central Long Beach apartment and surrounded the building, said Mann. They then heard someone inside cry out, "It's the cops!" and suddenly the three male suspects came running out of the apartment.

Officers caught Daily in a courtyard, said Mann. The other two suspects ran up through a laundry room to the building's roof where they were captured by Mann and Officer Ray Nelson, Mann said.

The woman was arrested near the apartment, he added, and when officers checked the apartment they saw the cash register drawers and weapons.

THE DRAWERS, containing bills, change and food stamps, were confiscated, said Mann. He said the weapons, also confiscated, included four revolvers, two automatic pistols, a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun and a .45-caliber semiautomatic rifle resembling a Thompson submachine gun.

Also discovered in the apartment, police added, were small quantities of marijuana and pills.

Rev. Dr. Burcham named area's clergyman of year

By LES RODNEY
Religion Editor

The annual spotlight as clergyman of the year in the Long Beach area fell Friday night on the Rev. Dr. H. David Burcham, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church, community leader and Navy chaplain.

Also honored at the Spotlight Awards Banquet of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches at Grace United Methodist Church were:

—Jesse S. "Bud" Holton Jr. of East Side Christian Church, an indefatigable community leader both in and out of the church, layman of the year.

—Mrs. Ralph (Myrtle) Boyd of Palo Verde Avenue Christian Church, district president of the Christian Women's Fellowship, local and ecumenical leader, churchwoman of the year.

—Sue Ann Edwards, 18, of Lakewood First Presbyterian Church, where she is termed an unusual, versatile and dedicated worker church youth of the year.

DR. BURCHAM, just this week named to a five-year term on the Recreation Commission, has played leading roles on behalf of the YMCA, the mayor's task force on education, and has been honored with awards by the Bar Association and the Y.

He served two terms as president of the local Council of Churches, and is presently in his second three-year term as chairman of the General Council of Los Ranchos Presbytery, which includes Long Beach and adjacent areas. A Long Beach native, he is the son of Poly High's first principal.

"Bud" Holton, a fune-

at director, has found time not only to be the leading layman of his own church since 1936, but to head up various civic groups. He is currently president of the area Red Cross chapter, has been president of Kiwanis, and the Community Volunteer Organization, and chairman of the Armed Services YMCA. He was a founding force behind formation of the popular Community Men's Fellowship Breakfast.

Mrs. Boyd, a retired school teacher, is president of the Palo Verde Avenue congregation as well as of the district women's group and has held executive office in the Council of Churches and Church Women United. "A local and ecumenical churchwoman par excellence!" says her pastor.

SUE ANN EDWARDS is a Long Beach City College student who works as a teacher's aid at Signal Hill Elementary School. She has taught in her church school, taught dance to junior high members as a medium for expressing their faith, and during Christmas vacation last year with her brother went to visit churches and missions in Baja California, bringing Bibles and leading in study meetings and song-fests. "She has a way of reaching out to new and shy people with Christ's love, making them feel welcome and important," says her pastor.

The usual capacity audience heard music by the New Hope Baptist Choirs, and applauded the installation of Aaron Herrington as new president of the area Council of Churches. He is a lay leader at First Congregational Church.

Program for technologists

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

A new external degree program that allows working medical technologists to earn masters degrees will begin in April at Dominguez Hills State College.

The master of science in medical technology degree is designed for the technologist who wants to move up to a supervisory position or meet the requirements for a bioanalyst license.

Medical technologists are licensed professionals who perform many of the routine and specialized tests in clinical laboratories.

The new degree program is a cooperative venture between the college and hospitals in the harbor area and central Los Angeles, college officials said.

Requirements for entering the program include a bachelors degree, a state medical technology license and a minimum of three years full-time experience in the profession.

STUDENTS MUST complete 12 courses during a year and one half period. Most will take two courses each quarter, college officials said.

After completing the basic courses, the student chooses between the two options — supervision or the bioanalyst license.

Students in the supervisory option will be trained for laboratory management.

The clinical science option may be taken in areas such as clinical biochemistry, microbiology, immunology, hematology, histochemistry and cytology, and toxicology.

The program is designed for part-time students. Courses are taught year-round on evenings and Saturday mornings.

Tuition for the degree program is $130 per course. The masters program compliments the regular on-campus BA program in medical technology that began last fall.

THE EXTERNAL degree program is designed to accommodate students who can't attend the traditionally scheduled on-campus classes because of work or other obligations.

There are two other external degree programs at DHS. One is a masters of business administration program designed for middle-management executives and the other is a BA program in the humanities which begins next month. An MA program in humanities is being planned for next year.

Signal Hill candidates get few contributions

Campaign contribution statements filed Friday in Signal Hill showed that candidates for the March 5 municipal election have received few donations so far, and a political committee receiving most donations has not yet picked a candidate.

Under a new state law, candidates are required to make three filings of campaign contributions and expenditures — two before the election and one after — itemizing receipts, including names and identifying donors of more than $100.

All of the candidates Friday were able to use the short form which simply declares they had not yet received donations totaling more than $500.

However, Frank Jordan, treasurer of the Signal Hill Citizens Committee, reported contributions of $825 received since Jan. 1. None of the money has been spent yet because the committee has not determined which candidates it will support.

Coastal panel to eye $46 million W. Beach center

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Regional coastal commissioners are scheduled to consider a $46.8 million commercial center, proposed for construction on the West Beach, when they meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the Long Beach Harbor Department, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

Also on the panel's 98-item agenda is a vote on the controversial, 60-unit highrise proposed for construction at 3001 E. Ocean Blvd. The application, filed by Les G. Jones and John J. Gresh, received a lengthy public hearing two weeks ago.

THE WEST Beach project, to be constructed by Union Bank and the Gilbert Financial Corp., is part of a 21-acre development under jurisdiction of the Long Beach Redevelopment Agency. It is located south of Ocean Boulevard between Magnolia Avenue and Shoreline Drive.

L.B. to host hobby show in April

The 30th annual Long Beach Hobby Show will be held Saturday and Sunday, April 6-7, and the Recreation Department is now taking applications from hobbyists wishing to enter.

For the first time, the hobby show, largest non-commercial exhibit of its kind in the world, will be held in the Long Beach Arena. In prior years, it has been in the Auditorium.

Rose Mary Feldman, craft instructor for the Recreation Department, is coordinator of the show.

Murder trial jury selection

Jury selection began Friday in the Long Beach Superior Court trial of two Los Angeles youths charged in connection with the fatal shooting last Nov. 9 of an infant girl near Poly High School.

Ronald Sherman and Johnny Blair, both 18, are each charged with one count of murder and one count of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the slaying of 7-month-old Tasha Lucas and wounding of 16-year-old Portia Howard, a Poly coed.

Though the entire, 11-segment development was granted exemption from the Coastal Conservation Act last June, it was later declared not exempt by the State Coastal Commission, which overturned the regional commission's June decision.

The state body's decision was overruled last Dec. 12 by a Los Angeles Superior Court judge, who ruled the development was planned and in progress "long before" either Nov. 8, 1972 or Feb. 1, 1973 — the deadline dates for the act.

Nevertheless, the legal cat-and-mouse game continues, and according to redevelopment executive director Allan A. Robertson, the agency is seeking this permit to avoid further legal delays.

He said the project will consist of three buildings of approximately 200,000-square-feet each. Two of the structures will be 14-stories, while the third — to be flanked by the other two — will rise only six stories.

THE BUILDINGS, which will house mostly offices, are to be separated by a large, open plaza, Robertson said.

The commission staff has recommended approval with conditions for the project. Due to the length of Monday's agenda, however, it is possible the development may not be considered. A commission spokesman said there is no way to determine how long the meeting will last, but if there are still items on the agenda when commissioners adjourn around 11 p.m., those items will be postponed.

Also scheduled for public hearing — but toward the end of the agenda — are two parking structures, one between Daisy Avenue and Magnolia avenues and Bronce and Alta ways, the other between Ocean Boulevard and Queen's Way and Shoreline Drive.

Services for 'Smokey' West

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

Shortly after 10 a.m. Sunday a lone swimmer will wade into the chilly surf below the Eighth Street parking lot in Seal Beach. He will be carrying a wreath made from a 36-inch buoy.

It will bear the inscription: "To Our Pal." With slow, sure strokes the swimmer will tow the wreath to a piling at the end of Seal Beach Pier and tie it there.

Thus will conclude the simple, poignant—and only—memorial services for former Seal Beach lifeguard Vern "Smokey" West, who died Wednesday of cancer at Veterans Administration Hospital in La Jolla. He was 37.

The solitary floral tribute to a fallen comrade was ordered by Seal Beach lifeguards, who helped arrange the unique parking lot services at the request of Mr. West's family.

He is survived by his wife, Sandy, 29, and daughter, Casey, 11, of 301 Eighth St., Seal Beach.

JACK HALEY, a family friend and former lifeguard lieutenant, said the city cooperated in arranging the services by providing 50 parking spaces in the Eighth Street lot.

At the 10 a.m. services, which will include songs by two Hawaiian singers, Mrs. West will be given a plaque that reads: "A lifeguard who will always be remembered by the City of Seal Beach." Edward L. Cibbarelli, who assume duties Monday as chief of police, will attend the services.

Haley said the family wanted the memorial to be simple, natural and very informal. Mr. West's remains were cremated and later will be scattered over the ocean.

Haley said Mr. West was a well known, well liked lifeguard who served for about five years with Seal Beach. During the past two years he had been racing and winning in surfing and catamaran competition.

He attended elementary school in Seal Beach and high school in Huntington Beach. He was an Air Force veteran.

The family suggests that in lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the American Cancer Society for research.

EPA parking fee plan out

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

All proposed federal regulations to impose surcharges on parking, which Long Beach officials contended would "bankrupt" the city, have been withdrawn, according to a report prepared for the Belmont Shore Parking District.

The regulations were proposed by the Environmental Protection Agency for the purpose of curbing pollution by discouraging use of automobiles. They would have levied fees of up to $450 a year for each parking space.

RANDALL J. VERRUE, city director of budget and research, said his office had advised directors of the Belmont Shore Parking District earlier to "go slow" on developing off-street parking in the Shore because of the EPA regulations.

Verrue said Friday that Russell Train, EPA administrator, has withdrawn the regulations because of opposition in Congress. As a result, Verrue said, his office has advised the Belmont Shore Parking District to proceed with its plans.

One district in Belmont Shore already has been formed. Designated District No. 2, it is bounded by Claremont and La Verne avenues, from Second Street to the east-west alley south of Second Street.

TWO OTHER districts are in various stages of organization. District No. 1 would be between St. Joseph and Nieto avenues, from Second Street to the alley, and District

No. 3 would be between Nieto and La Verne avenues, from Second Street to the alley.

Verrue said District No. 1 has been stalemated, because signatures of owners of 60 per cent of the assessed valuation of property within a district are required to initiate its formation. In District No. 1, 40 per cent of the assessed valuation was represented by two owners — Quigley's variety store and Belmont Theater — and they declined to sign the petitions.

A recent reassessment of the area by the county assessor's office, however, has dropped the value of these two properties below 40 per cent of the district total, and it now appears possible the required 60 per cent may be obtained, Verrue said.

Verrue said the district hopes to obtain the required signatures within two or three weeks.

In District No. 3, the district board is completing the verification of signatures on petitions and hopes to go to the City Council for action within two weeks, Verrue said.

County to OK Pedro facility design

Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors Tuesday are expected to approve an architectural agreement with William Lusby for design of a proposed $757,000 neighborhood facility building to be located at Third and Gaffey Streets in San Pedro.

In a report to the board officials said the plans call for a two-story building providing office space for various county community service operations.

They said the construction cost would be offset by a grant of $494,340 from the federal department of Housing and Urban Development.

Officials asked supervisors to approve a fee of $53,228 to Lusby and also to approve payment of up to $5,800 for a seismic and soil foundation report.

In addition to the building cost officials said they need about $71,000 for site acquisition. They said construction cost will include a sum of $5,750 for demolishing a building now on the proposed site.

These films certain Oscar losers

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —
Of the 327 movies eligible to win the Oscar for best picture of the year, 321

are certain to lose when nominations are announced.
Obviously all the films have a chance to come away with an Academy Award.

In fact some 300 of them might as well have been used for guitar picks.
"The Boy Who Cried Werewolf," for instance will win nothing.
Neither will the late
Boris Karloff's last epic,
"Cauldron of Blood."
Who would vote for
"Cannibal Girls?" or
"Scream, Blacula, Scream?"

"Son of Blob" is a guaranteed loser. The same may be said for "Godzilla vs. the Smog Monster."
And what chance for an Oscar has "Dirty Lovers?"

"The Last Tango in Paris" is an X-rated film with a chance of nomination, perhaps even a shot at the Oscar. But other X-rated goodies have the same odds going for them as home movies of a Bar Mitzvah.

Among the porno offerings eligible are "The Cheerleaders," "Heavy Traffic," "Last Fox Trot in Burbank," and "Office Girls," which has a tiny but intimate cast of three

— Karin Field, Emely
Reur and someone identified as R. Glemnitz.
The only eligible picture with an X-rated cast is "It Happened in Hollywood."
The billing names of the actors are so dirty they cannot be listed in a family publication.

BIGGEST bomb of the year for the money spent was "Lost Horizon" which won't have a chance at the Oscar either. But then neither will "Katz & Karasso."

Some pictures went into release during 1973 without any rating at all. But one may rest assured that such works of art as
"Please Don't Eat My Mother" are not to be construed as family fare.
(Intentional)

Another movie wrapped in the nebulous anonymity of no rating is "Sexa-pade in Mexico" a-ong with "Teen-age Bride,"
"The Last Tango in Aca-

pulo" and "Detective's Exploitation."

Yet according to the rules of the Motion Picture Academy even non-rated films are eligible for awards. Unfairly, perhaps. Few if any of the Academy members have seen the unrated.

JAPANESE films have inundated the Oscar eligibles for several years, including some that come in two installments: "The Shadow Hunters" and
"The Shadow Hunters Part II." Both list 40 cast members who the producers consider eligible for acting awards. They read like the Tokyo telephone book.

Live performance

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans will appear at Knott's Berry Farm over the Washington's Birthday weekend, Feb. 16-18.

'Financier' held in bank job

A man who described himself as "a self-employed financial finder" has been arrested on a charge of trying to rob a San Diego County bank, the FBI said Friday.

Richard Eugene McClune, 44, was taken into custody Thursday night at his home in Northridge. A federal complaint charging him with bank burglary was issued Tuesday in San Diego, the FBI said.

'The Elevator' — study in claustrophobia

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Television viewers with claustrophobia perhaps will choose not to tune in tonight's "ABC Suspense Movie." It might prove too painful to watch.

The new TV movie from Universal is titled "The Elevator," and it airs from 8:30 to 10 on Channel 7.

James Farentino, one of the stars, portrays a claustrophobic robber who gets trapped in an elevator between floors of a high-rise office building, along with seven other passengers of diverse backgrounds.

Being a claustrophobic, the armed bandit goes berserk in the elevator, which is in danger of plunging 30 floors at any moment.

found himself trapped in a small space would feel near death and would almost kill to get out. He might even punch his way through a wall.

In the movie, Farentino plays Eddie Holcomb, a former prisoner of war in TRAPPED WITH him on the stalled elevator are the building manager (Roddy McDowall); the lonely and imaginative Mrs. Amanda Kenyon (Myrna Loy); Dr. Stuart Reynolds (Craig Stevens); Dr. Reynolds' wife (Teresa Wright); the doctor's office nurse (Arlene Golonka), with whom he has been having an affair; and a pregnant woman and her rebellious teen-age son.

Also starring are Don Stroud and Carol Lynley as Pete Howarth and Irene Turner, Holcomb's partners in crime. Holcomb becomes separated from Howarth when he enters the elevator just after they have robbed an investment office on the 39th floor, committing murder in the process, while Miss Turner waits in the garage below.

voted award as the best TV news anchorman in Minneapolis. He daydreams of winning the award, of meeting his idol, Cronkite, and of being offered a fantastic new job in New York. But when he does meet Cronkite things don't work out the way they do in his dreams.

NANCY WILSON, the singer, hosts a 90-minute, talk-variety special for KNBC (Channel 4) at 11:30 tonight.

Scheduled guests are Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif.; William Peter Blatty, author-producer of "The Exorcist"; composer-arranger Quincy Jones; blues singer Jimmy Witherspoon; comedian Darrow Ingus; and the Cat Tjader Quintet.

group of Southern Californians to find the mythical island of Atlantis will be examined on "The Los Angeles Collective" at 7:30 p.m. Sunday on Channel 28. Interviewed by Lowell Ponte will Maxine Asher, leader of the controversial expedition, and Dr. Julian Nava, educator.

CBS chief asks fight on federal encroachment

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Arthur R. Taylor, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System Inc., has assailed the "arbitrary and capricious misuse of government power, however well intended" which has been eroding the broadcasters' freedom and now is spreading to print journalism.

He said it was time for the public information industry "to band together to put the government on notice" that its attempts to assert control over areas that previously were left free "are aimed at principles too basic to be compromised."

In a speech to the International Radio and Television Society at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Taylor reviewed numerous instances of government encroachments on free broadcasting, through several national administrations, and then noted how newspaper independence is similarly being compromised.

He cited actions by the Justice Department and the Federal Communications Commission.

The movie was filmed in the Crocker Bank Building in Los Angeles, and what do you know? While the performers were trapped in a mock-up elevator in front of the cameras, a middle-aged woman was trapped in an elevator in the same building for almost two hours.

WALTER CRONKITE, the eminent CBS newscaster, makes a brief appearance as an actor on tonight's "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" (9 to 9:30 on Channel 2).

In the episode, Ted Baxter (Ted Knight), an eight-time loser, sweats out his annual vigil of waiting to see if he will win the co-

Bruins shoot down Kamikaze Ducks

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

Dick Harter ran out of kamikazes Friday night and his Oregon Ducks fell out of first place in the Pacific-8 Conference basketball race.

While his UCLA teammates were scattered like tennins, Bill Walton was the baddest dude in John Wooden's anti-aircraft wing. When he finished scoring 25 points, grabbing 17 rebounds and adding nine assists, the Bruins had gunned down the Kamikaze Kids, 84-66. A crowd of 12,372 Wooden worshippers thought they had witnessed a preview of World War III right there on the Pauley Pavilion floor.

"Oregon hired the wrong guy to coach football," voiced one of the family faithful. "That's not basketball out there." "It's the most I've ever seen on the floor in my life," concurred a bruised Greg Lee in the Bruin dressing room.

There was a difference of opinion down the hall. "That was ballet out there," said Harter with a smile. "That's basketball and 99 per cent of the teams in the country play that way.

"I didn't see one deliberate cheap shot out there. That was not a tough game," he said emphatically, "especially on the boards. They got every rebound, didn't they?"

The Bruins did indeed prove the more domineering on the boards, 47-34. But the Ducks took away the trophy for personal fouls, 28-21.

It's a wonder the whistles of officials Jack Ditty and Dan Sherwood didn't strike from overwork.

Wooden drew a rare technical midway through the first half when Marques Johnson, celebrating his 18th birthday, was called for basket interference at the Bruins' end of the court.

Harter didn't even the score until almost the same point in the second half. Sherwood teed him for excessive complaining on a Walton tip-in.

"Gentlemen, if that wasn't dunking... Wilt Chamberlain couldn't dunk a ball better than that," he said with a laugh. "They'd better move that basket up to 12 feet or more."

"There were at least 14 points one way or another that were the result of someone going in that invisible cylinder. I'm not going to say they all went against us, either."

Oregon never really got into its game plan, which would have probably caused a riot in Pauley.

"We wanted to stall," revealed Harter, "but we made our first few shots and so did they, which took us out of our preconceived plan. I wanted to play a first half with no more than 20 points going to either team, but that's tough when you get down by 9-8 points."

Oregon's aggressive style, which most opponents term a karate defense, put the Ducks in foul trouble from the beginning. About the time they took a 15-12 lead, Harter sent them into a 1-2-2 zone.

"We were in foul trouble and I had no alternative," said Harter. "We only play zone when we're forced into it."

With Walton flipping the ball into the basket or to unguarded mates, the Bruins outscored Oregon, 29-16, from there, allowing the Ducks only 10 points and three field goals the final 13 minutes of the first half.

Five of those points came from center Gerald Willett, who picked up his fourth foul 3:17 before the halftime buzzer and fouled out 90 seconds later.

Ironically, Greg Ballard had reported to the scorer as Willett's replacement after the fourth foul, but couldn't get in until the next whistle — Willett's departure.

Harter must have emulated Knute Rockne at intermission. The Kamikaze Kids tore into the Bruins like wild dogs after raw meat and came away with five fouls inside the first 3½ minutes of the second half. UCLA was shooting in the one-and-one situation with only seven minutes gone and holding an 18-point lead.

Harter kept his starters in until fouls forced them

Lancers startle Jordan

Hand Panthers 69-63 defeat

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Lakewood High added another surprising twist to an already upside down Moore League basketball season Friday night.

The Lancers became the latest team to add to Jordan's string of woes, upending the Panthers 69-63 to more than make amends for a 20-point first round setback.

It was the third loss in a row for Jordan and fourth in six games, all but ending the playoff hopes of a team that at one time this season was ranked as high as second among 4-A schools.

Mike Fruhwirth was the player Jordan let slip away for two uncontested layins in the final 1:47 to provide the difference and keep the Lancers' CIF hopes still flickering with a 3-3 record.

Fruhwirth broke away from the flow of play at 1:47 to take a pass all alone underneath and score two points to break a 63-61 tie. After Dan Chislock had sank 1-of-2 free throws at 1:36, Fruhwirth scored again on a carbon copy of his earlier maneuver at 0:31 and gave the Lancers the breathing room they needed, 68-63.

A free throw by Mario Reyes at 0:10 accounted for the final margin.

Fruhwirth's second basket had come when the Lancers were in a semi-delay, nursing a three-point lead. "The were both set plays," said Lancer coach Will Foerster. "When everyone is swarming on one side, Mike comes across for a layup on the other side of the basket."

Fruhwirth had replaced starter, Dennis Heaton at 3:41 of the final period when the 6-5 forward had drawn his fifth foul.

At the time Lakewood had a seven-point lead, 63-56, before James Hardy slipped in three baskets and David Oliver followed up a missed free throw with a bucket to draw the Panthers even.

The capacity crowd at Lakewood witnessed a stirring duel between the 6-8½ Hardy and counterpart Guy King. Hardy, playing with an enthusiasm not seen in the last three games, scored a game-high 24 points.

King wasn't far behind at 22, a figure also equaled by Panther Larry Hudson.

Woods second to no one, puts 72-3

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

At 295 pounds, it's incredible that George Woods could be lost in anybody's shadow.

But in the old days it was Randy Matson and in recent times Al Feuerbach, his Pacific Coast Club teammate.

Friday night at the Forum, Woods finally established himself as the big man he is when he muscled a 16-pound steel ball 72 feet, 2¾ inches.

That's farther than any other heave in history — indoors, outdoors, amateur or pro.

It was the electric moment of the 15th Indoor Games, although Garden Grove's Mary Decker, a 15-year-old Tinker Bell, threatened to steal the hearts of the 14,084 spectators with her women's indoor record of 2:06.7 in the 800.

Together — and what a contrast they present — Woods and Miss Decker were acclaimed as co-athletes of the meet, succeeding Steve Prefontaine.

Oregon's effusive whippet had won the honor two years in a row but this time was beaten in the mile by Tony Waldrop of North Carolina U., who also outran New Zealand star John Walker in 3:58.3. Pre's time was 3:59.5, Walker's 4:01.0.

Woods, an admissions counselor at Southern Illinois University, will be 31 Monday but is just coming into his own with an unbeaten indoor season. His record throw erupted from a volcano-like roar that alerted the crowd to a special effort.

Woods' series, in which he broke his own indoor record three times, was 70-5½, foul, 69-¾, 70-9, 72-2¾ and pass.

But George and Al both indicated that matters will proceed from awe-some to unreal when they go outdoors this spring.

"I'll still have to chase Al outdoors," said Woods, bowing to Feuerbach's official world record of 71-7 set last season. "He's the outdoor king."

Feuerbach smiled, "I'm learning a lot about myself, and it's all positive. I'm glad to see George doing this because I'm not awed by it. I think I can do it, too."

"Twenty-two meters is going to be the barrier outdoors. Indoors is still unofficial... not taking anything away from George. His throw was tremendous."

Woods' heave actually exceeds the metric barrier by a half-inch, but indoor records are not formally recognized.

"The throw went to the left," Woods said, "which indicates I still had something left in me. My body position wasn't very good, but the wrist snap was good. I've done a few technique changes and they're working out."

Feuerbach explained Woods' reverberating yell on the record toss:

"When you hit a position where you can really get into it, that's the whole trip in shotputting."

Feuerbach, to his credit, followed Woods' record with his personal best of 70-4¼ on his last try.

The meet lost its only gold medal winner from the Munich Olympics when USC long jumper Randy Williams withdrew because "I just didn't feel like jumping tonight. I may jump in Texas (Houston) Saturday night. I'm coming off an injury and I don't want to aggravate it."

Jerry Proctor, a late entry from the Beverly Hills Striders, won with a leap of 25-7.

Herb Washington survived a slipping block to beat San Diego State's 9.1 upstart, Steve Williams. (Continued on C-2, Col. 8)

Vikings bury Valley

LBCC stays tied for Metro's lead

By JIM MANGAN
Staff Writer

Using scoring bursts early in each half to set the tone of the game, Long Beach City College breezed past Valley, 93-43, Friday night on the winners' court to maintain its share of the Metropolitan Conference lead.

Bakersfield also won. Metro standings defeating Pasadena, 91-68, to remain in a first place tie with the Vikes.

Against Valley, it was a case of Long Beach doing nothing wrong and the visiting Monarchs doing nothing right.

The winners shot 64 per cent from the floor, including nine for nine by Steve Sincok. In contrast, Valley hit on only 26 per cent of their tries.

Coach Bill Fraser's squad also had 15-for-20 from the foul line, 44 rebounds, and only 14 fouls against an opponent that was only 3-for-6 in free throws, had 33 rebounds, 19 personals and one technical foul.

Sincok's shooting average was really nine buckets in only eight actual tries, he was the closest Vike to the basket when a Monarch deflected one into the LBCC net so he picked up two points without any effort.

The game started slowly and raggedly, and the LBCC outfit led only 2-0 after three minutes of play, but a short time later a 13-3 blitz over a five-minute span gave Long Beach a 21-7 lead, and the rest of the night was no contest.

The hapless Monarchs preferred to play their deliberate passing game, look for shots that never came, and there was considerable doubt if they could make it into double figures by intermission.

As the second half started, with Long Beach leading 40-15, Valley appeared to be ready to make a run at Fraser's team with six quick points.

Then in a less-than-two-minute span, the Vikes outscored the losers 15-2, and had a 38-point spread with still more than 15 minutes to play.

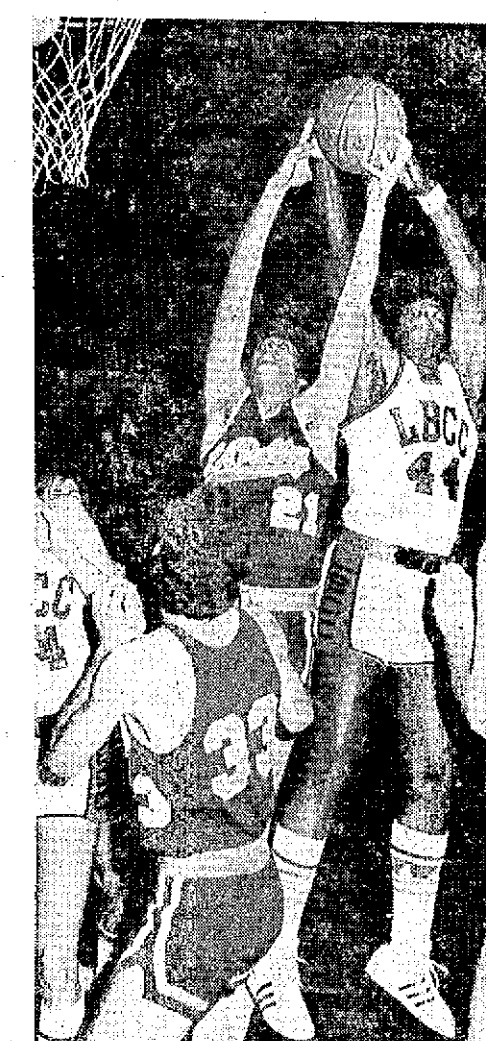

Dan Frost was game high with 19 points, and he was followed closely by Sincok, 18, Tom DeBerry, 17, and Cal Wulfsberg, 15.

Yancey fires 61, tops Hope

By DOUG IVES

PALM SPRINGS—Is it just a matter of time until some PGA touring pro shoots 59 in competition? "Most definitely," says Bert Yancey, a man who almost did Friday in the third round of the 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Classic.

A missed three-foot tap and two lipped-out putts is all that separated Yancey from the tour's first sub-60 round. Instead, he settled for a course-record, 9-under-par 61 at Indian Wells.

The magnificent effort, which included only three putts of more than 10 feet, vaulted the 35-year-old Tallahassee, Fla., pro into a three-stroke lead over Hubert Green at 204.

Mark Hayes (67) and Lee Elder (69) are five behind and Johnny Miller (69) six. Arnold Palmer (74) trails by 16.

Yancey's scorecard showed nine birdies and one eagle on a 6,500-yard course which has been easy pickings all week. It's a tight layout but under ideal weather conditions, which prevailed Friday, a round in the mid-60s is now uncommon.

Dean Bamen, now the PCA commissioner, held the previous record of 62 and, ironically, employed the same caddy, Ralph Coffey, as Yancey had Friday.

The last 61 on tour was four years ago at Tucson by Miller, who plays Indian Wells today. The final two rounds will be televised (Channel 4, 2 p.m.).

Seven players have shot 60—Al Brosch in 1951, Bill Nary in 1952, Ted Kroll, Wally Ulrich and Tommy the first half as the Trojans assumed a comfortable 11-point lead.

"John has good quickness and always seems to play well against Oregon State," Boyd said in praise of Lambert, who came within one point of his career high at USC—28 points against Houston last season.

"I thought we played very well tonight," Boyd told a cluster of newsmen in the Trojans' cramped dressing quarters.

"We handled their zone well. It's a little different type of zone than we're used to seeing. It's a matchup zone."

"We'd like to win the rest of our games to make our game with UCLA meaningful (March 9). I thought we practiced well this week, with no letdown after the loss to the Bruins. We played everybody tonight."

"However, I was upset with our execution of offense when we'd get 15-point leads. We resorted to too much individual play. I hate to see the team starting playing like individuals when they think they've got the game won," said Boyd.

"I do think Oregon

49ERS, AZTECS VIE IN 'JUST ANOTHER GAME'

SAN DIEGO - Long Beach State and San Diego State collide for the second time in three days here this afternoon in what Aztec coach Dick Davis contends is "just another game."

"Long Beach is under suspension, it can't go to the NCAA playoffs," Davis said Thursday after his team had fallen to the 49ers, 61-48, "so our games with them don't count. They don't go one up on us by winning and we don't go one down by losing. It's just another game for us."

"If that's the case," wonders Long Beach coach Lyle Olson, "then why do they spend a week practicing still before they play us. If the game isn't important to them, why don't they just come out and play basketball?"

The Aztecs held the ball extensively in Thursday night's Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. contest and everyone expects them to do the same thing in today's 1 o'clock San Diego Arena encounter.

The game will be shown live on Channel 5, beginning at 1 p.m. broadcast over KGBS-FM (97.1).

"I'm not saying what we're going to do," Davis says of today's game plan.

It had better be a little more exciting than Thursday night's play.

Technical foul: Reyes.

JV score: Lakewood 51, Jordan 43.

Pacific-8 Compton holds off 'others' Poly, 63-54

crowded

Combined News Services

UCLA's 84-66 victory over Oregon Friday night created a little room at the top of the Pacific-8

standings, but something still must be done about conditions in the cellar.

Washington, which fell to Stanford, 88-68, is alone

at the bottom with a 1-5 record, but there are four other teams - Oregon

State, Washington State,

California and Stanford - within one loss of the Huskies.

Stanford's seven-foot center, Rich Kelley,

dunked in a career-high

32 points in leading the Cardinals to their third impressive victory in a row. Kelley sparked a 10-0

Stanford spurt to open the second half that established a 23-point advantage for the hosts.

Doug Villotti scored 19 points, including two on a pair of late free throws to enable California to nudge

Washington State, 69-65.

Monte Towse scored 21 points and David Thompson and Tom Burleson 20

apiece as North Carolina

State routed Georgia

Tech, 98-54, for its 15th consecutive victory.

North Carolina saw a

26-point advantage trimmed to four before it regrouped behind the 19 points of Bobby Jones to down Furman, 95-69.

North Carolina State, ahead only 14-12 six minutes into the contest, led Georgia Tech, 41-14 at one point in the first half.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Combined News Services

Rod Milburn, in his last appearance as an amateur, bowed out with style Friday night, setting a world indoor record of 6.8 in the 55-meter hurdles at the U.S. Olympic Invitational Track and Field meet.

Milburn's time was two-tenths of a second better than the previous mark he shared with Frank Siebeck and Raimund Belling of Germany.

Larry Shipp, a sophomore at LSU, also bettered the record in 6.9.

Milburn will make his International Track Assn. debut next Friday at Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y.

THE BASEBALL commissioner's office denied a report that President Nixon would not be invited to throw out the first ball "because of the nature of the political climate in the country."

The Washington Post quoted a spokesman in the commissioner's office as saying, "there are no plans for a presidential opener." The reason given was "the political climate."

Bowie Kuhn was not available for comment.

THE NATIONAL Football League, facing fights from the newly formed World Football League and a bill introduced in Congress, has a bigger battle facing it — the Players Assn.

The NFL Players Assn. is upset with the NFL for threatening to discontinue health and life insurance benefits. An NFL spokesman denied reports that insurance benefits will be used for negotiations. "That's simply not true," said a spokesman. "The 1970 collective bargaining agreement clearly specifies the payments for insurance benefits begin April 4, 1970 for a four-year period. It ends March 31, 1974."

U.S. Rep. John F. Seiberling, an Akron Democrat, introduced a bill to abolish the reserve clause in professional football, baseball, basketball and hockey.

ALL IS not well in the WFL either. The Memphis franchise owner probably cannot wait another month for the Park Commission to decide whether to rent him the city's stadium. "Not only that, but even if a lease is agreed upon, it comes after so much adversity and ill feeling that I am not sure the city would support it," said WFL president Gary Davidson.

BRIEFLY: Auburn University athletic director Lee Hayley confirmed that 14 black athletes, united to protest a rule on facial hair, packed their bags and left the athletic dormitory. Shug Jordan, Auburn football coach, said that three football scholarships will be terminated. Later Clifford Outlin, a track and field athlete, returned to the school. Participation in the Montgomery Track Club indoor meet... The Virginia Squires, stripped of superstars and plagued by sagging attendance, were sold to a group of Norfolk-area businessmen by owner Earl Foreman. The price of the sale was believed to be around $1 million. First duty of the new owners, according to Richard J. Davis, spokesman, will be to insure the return of George Gervin, sold to San Antonio. ABA commissioner Mike Storen wants a federal judge's permission for the league's 10 members to review his cancellation of the purchase of Gervin.

JOSE NÁPOLES will be fighting today to do what only a handful of welterweight boxers have accomplished — move up to a heavier class and win the World Middleweight title. Champion Carlos Monzon, of Argentina, holding a 10-pound edge, will stand four inches taller. Since winning the title in 1970, Monzon had successfully defended it eight times... The San Diego Chargers said they are asking the NFL to nullify their trade of quarterback Wayne Clark for Cincinnati's Virgil Carter, who signed with the WFL... Muhammad Ali said he has not decided whether to fight Jerry Quarry. Ali said he wants three months to rest before starting to think about another fight.

ATTORNEYS for the National Hockey League and World Hockey Assn. entered their third day of conferences in efforts to conclude a peace agreement between the two leagues... Vice President Gerald Ford will be honored at the annual Frank Leahy Memorial Awards dinner Thursday... An Argentine court found French auto driver Jean Pierre Beltoise guilty of negligent homicide in the death of Italian driver Ignazio Giunti in a flaming crash during a race three years ago... Randy Gardner of Los Angeles won the junior men's title at the U.S. Figure Skating championships. Gordon McKellen of Lake Placid, N.Y., won the senior men's title... Hannu Wenzel won the women's world championship slalom gold medal to bring the first world title in any sport to the tiny principality of Lichtenstein... Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers was elected president of the NFL's Player Assn.

GARDENING

Long Beach, Calif., Sat., Feb. 9, 1974 INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—C-5

A SPARAGUS PRENGERI... low-growing vine

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Asparagus sprengeri of the lily family and originally from South Africa was a favorite potted and hanging-basket plant, although grown mostly in greenhouses, in the past. The small, narrow, bright green leaves on arching branches present an attractive mass of color. Though listed as preferring shade, it grows quite well in the sun. It is a desirable plant for cutting foliage.

The flowers are pinkish color and bloom on the upper portions of main stalks. The red berries add cheerful color around the holiday season.

We've seen an unusual groundcover planting of them in the Rancho Mirage area about 10 miles east of Palm Springs. They were growing nicely outdoors in full sun in the month of December.

They should be desirable plants for slopes because the tuberous roots would help bind the soil. The arching vine-like branches would harmonize with the slanting slope.

IN THE MIDST OF THE energy crisis, we should look ahead at the rising cost of food and consider growing some vegetables of our own.

One of the perennial vegetables that grow easily, is hardy and quite expensive during the beginning of the harvest season is the asparagus officinalis. Asparagus, which is considered a social status vegetable by some, is available now.

The gardener should set aside at least a 100-square-foot, sunny garden area for them and be prepared to harvest the vegetables for many years. One farmer grew them in the same area for about 20 years in the San Gabriel Valley.

New Zealand spinach is another perennial vegetable, so is artichoke and rhubarb. There's also cane berries, grapes and strawberries that can be planted out bare-root right now. But they must be planted soon.

OF THE ANNUAL vegetables, loose-leaf lettuce grows easily, also beets and carrots. Beets mature slower, yet faster than do carrots. The gardener can harvest leaves from the lettuce sparingly (and from beets) while the plants are maturing. The beet leaves are cooked and are used like spinach. If one doesn't like the red bleeding beets, sow Burpee's golden beet. The boiled golden roots are tender, excellent in salads and as pickles. The tops taste better than the boiled spinach. The roots don't become fibrous, keep their sweet flavor, and are best when eaten small.

While vegetable gardening, let's not forget that flowering plants serve various landscape uses. A few of them planted in annual and flower beds are "anchor" plants. When annuals have finished blooming and have been removed, these anchor plants add color or foliage until new annuals are replanted.

A BED OF perennials wisely selected as to different seasons of bloom, furnish color all year. Hardy perennials planted in front of shrubs withstand the encroachment of roots and produce needed color when the shrubs are not blooming.

Edging, low-growing perennials in front of taller plants add a neat border for a rose bed, flower bed, outdoor planter box, and soften the sharp dividing line between the walk or driveway and lawn, or a flower bed.

Hope(s) up for Yancey

Bolt in 1954, Mike Souchak in 1955 and Sam Snead in 1957.

Souchak has the record for one nine, 27, and Yancey is second at 28, achieving it on the incoming nine at the tough Firestone Country Club course in Aborn last year. He went out in 37.

"I was going for that 59 on the last hole," Yancey admitted. "I was 137 yards out and I went for the stick with an 8-iron. It's a thrill to be in a position for a 59 and I gave it everything. But the ball flew a little and I was 20 feet long. I two-putted."

A deep thinker, Yancey is said to know as much about the golf swing as any player in the game today. Because of his knowledge, his views on breaking 60 are respected. "It will happen," he said emphatically. "Everything in golf is better today — the equipment especially, and also the schooling. At one time a round of 67 or 68 was something special. Now almost every week you see a guy shoot 63 or 64."

DeWitt Weaver shot 64 at Indian Wells Thursday.

Yancey is a maverick of sorts. He feels there is too much emphasis on putting and says the cup should be widened three times its normal size to make putting less important.

"A man should be rewarded for his good shots from tee to green," said the former West Point cadet who didn't finish his schooling because of nervous breakdown. "As it stands now, too many guys can hit two mediocre shots to the fringe, chip on and one putt."

Yancey started on the back nine and holed a 30-footer which he said was a confidence-builder. He hadn't made a check in four weeks, was ill with the flu and he needed a fast start to get fired up.

He shot 71 at Eldorado the first day and 72 at LaQuinta in the second round but didn't make any long putts.

Ask the Old Farmer: I have been hearing the phrase lately, "Hopkins' choice." What does it mean and where did it originate? N.V., Ironwood, Mich.

"Hopson's choice" means no alternative. Dates from 1631 and one Thomas Hobson of England who rented out horses. "Take the one nearest the door," he told each customer, giving them no choice.

Reclaimed desert soil often rich

Reclaimed desert areas, such as those along the Santa Ana River bed from the city of Riverside to Los Angeles, often have such rich soil many famous horse ranches located there find it unnecessary to supplement the diet of horses with the quantities of vitamins used elsewhere.
